LOTTERY INDICTMENTS.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 24.—At noon yesterday the United States grand jury returned 18 indictments against the officers and directors of the Louisiana lottery. The evidence was all laid before the jury in the form of affidavits and kept with the utmost secrecy. The department at Washington brought the charges before this court for the reason that their efforts in other states before United States grand juries had been frustrated.

OFF FOR WASHINGTON.

New York, Oct. 24.—Secretary Blaine left this city for Washington at 10:10 this morning on the congressional limited express of the Pennsylvania railroad. He was accompanied by his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Walter Damrosch, and his private secretary, L. A. Dent.

SEARLES WILL CASE.

Salem, Mass., Oct. 24.—The hearing of the Searles will case closed this morning; the will was allowed and notice of appeal given.

THEY SEE THE WAY.

Ohio Voters to Break Taxation's Chains.

Jerry Simpson Heads the Break to Campbell.

Thousands of Voters Will Follow His Lead.

Why the "People's Press" Supports the Democracy.

One Good Thing at a Time is Enough and They Feel the Necessity of Planting the Tin Soldier Deep in His Political Grave.

Wapakoneta, O., Oct. 23.—Quite a sensation has been created in political circles by the announcement that the People's Press, the recognized organ of the people's party in this part of the state, had denounced McKinley, repudiated Seitz and declared for Campbell and the democracy.

Jerry Simpson addressed a meeting in Lima a week ago to-day and during his stay in that city, said to a Times reporter that Seitz had no show, that he would like to see McKinley defeated and that he thought Campbell was ahead and hoped he would win.

With this interview as a text the editor of the Press of Buckland announces that he has carefully considered the interview and coincides with Simpson in the view that it was a mistake to nominate a state or county ticket this year.

The argument of the article is that as great questions are settled one at a time the defeat of McKinley would be notice to congress, and the whole country that the present law is condemned by the people of Ohio.

The article closes as follows:

"To insure the good of the people we must get relief on the tariff taxation.

"Let us unite with the democratic party this fall, thus accomplishing this much good; and then we can expect their aid and assistance in getting free coinage.

"Hence we advise all persons who are in favor of tariff reform and free coinage to vote the straight democratic ticket from top to bottom, thus making victory sure, and in this manner accomplishing at least two great and needed reforms.

"When this has been done then we can urge and hope to obtain many other things that will be for the general good of the masses."

HANGED FOR ASSAULT.

Hampton, Va., Oct. 24.—Robert Jordan, a negro, was hanged in the jail yard at 7 o'clock this morning for a criminal assault on a Mrs. Moore, in June last. The execution was very quiet. Mrs. Moore is in an asylum. She became a raving maniac shortly after the trial of Jordan.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

London, Oct. 24.—It is learned that Dr. P. H. Carpenter of Eton college, whose death was announced yesterday, committed suicide with chloroform. He is supposed to have been made insane by financial troubles.

ANOTHER CANDIDATE.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The name of John T. Glenn, ex-mayor of Atlanta, has been presented to the president for appointment to one of the vacant inter-state commerce commissionerships. He is a nephew of Howell Cobb, and is indorsed by both senators and the majority of the Georgia delegation.

OPIUM SMUGGLING SUIT.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Acting Secretary Spaulding has directed the collector of customs at San Francisco to commence both criminal and civil proceedings against Bernard Reiss for opium smuggling.

BUTTERMAN AGAINST REDMAN.

Dublin, Oct. 24.—The conservatives will put up Mr. M. F. Butterman to contest the seat made vacant by the death of Mr. Parnell.

NEW LIEUTENANTS.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The president has appointed Charles A. Gove and John Gibson Lieutenants in the navy.

SNOW STORM.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 24.—Snow fell in this region yesterday and the wind was a gale.

CONFESSED HIS CRIME.

Charles Green Tells of a Deliberate Murder.

He Shot Minnie Gilmour to Death Because She Discarded Him for Another Lover.

London, Oct. 24.—Charles Green, whose appearance bears him out in his assertion that he is a sailor, has surrendered himself to the Bermudsey police, and confesses to having murdered his sweetheart, a young woman named Minnie Gilmour who, as Green says, lives at 28 Christian street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Green asserts that on returning to Philadelphia after a voyage in March last, he discovered that during his absence his sweetheart had accepted the attentions of an Englishman.

Meeting the girl near the race course, he first upbraided her fiercely for her disloyalty and then, presenting a revolver at her shot her to death.

Green then fled to Queenstown. From that place he slowly journeyed eastward, but as the days passed the self-confessed murderer suffered the bitterest pangs of conscience, while his nights were haunted by the memory of his crime.

His life became utterly unbearable, and he finally determined to surrender himself up to outraged law.

The story told by Green, as understood on this side of the ocean, sounds sincere. The prisoner says that his parents live in South Francis street, Philadelphia. At the moment of giving himself into custody Green was perfectly sober and spoke and acted rationally.

SICKNESS IN MANSFIELD.

Scarlet Fever and Diphtheria Reported to an Alarming Extent.

Mansfield, O., Oct. 24.—The number of cases of diphtheria in this city is estimated at over 150. There are also a great number of cases of scarlet fever and quite a number of deaths have occurred within the past week, and the board of health, in consequence, will probably request the closing of the public schools.

VENEZUELA TARIFF.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Official notifications have been given to the bureau of American representatives that in Venezuela the duties on corn, beans, peas and rice, the free admission of which had been permitted since April 20, have been restored, to take effect Oct. 20. The rate on corn and rice is 10 centimos of a bolivar per kilo (equal to about two-thirds of a cent a pound), and on beans and peas 25 centimos of a bolivar per kilo (equal to 1 2-3 cents per pound.)

PUBLIC HEALTH CONVENTION.

Kansas City, Oct. 24.—The convention of the American Public Health association came to an end to-day with the election of the following officers: President, Dr. Felix Foermento, of the City of Mexico, and as the second vice president Dr. Walter Wyman, of Washington, D. C. The next convention will be held in the City of Mexico.

DAYTON BOND SALE.

Dayton, O., Oct. 24.—The city authorities sold $198,000 worth of bonds for $211,970 to Blake Bros., brokers, of Boston, Mass. One hundred and thirty-three thousand dollars' worth of bonds were street paving bonds, and $65,000 were renewal bonds. The bonds draw 5 per cent interest, payable semi-annually.

GEYER AT ST. MARY'S.

St. Mary's, Oct. 24.—Hon. John L. Geyer, democratic candidate for senator in the thirty-second senatorial district, addressed a rousing democratic gathering at the city hall last evening. The hall was packed and Mr. Geyer made a good impression.

GAS LINE BREAKS.

Fostoria, O., Oct. 24.—A bad break occurred just east of this city in the Tiffin gas line, which passes through Fostoria along the B. & O. The burning gas illuminated the surroundings all Wednesday night.

REVOLUTION IN PARAGUAY.

The Rebels Did Not Follow up Their Attack.

After Their Leader Fell They Retreated in Disorder—The Government Troops Met Heavy Losses.

New York, Oct. 24.—A cable dispatch to the Herald from Buenos Ayres says additional accounts have been received there of the recent attempt at revolution in Paraguay.

The rebels were led by Major Vera and Deputy Machin, of the liberal party. They made a desperate attack on the barracks. For a few minutes the fighting was fierce and bloody, and then Vera and Machin both fell. The loss of their leaders demoralized the rebels and they broke and fled, leaving, besides their leaders, 10 men.

The government force also met with heavy loss, Colonels Mills and Osuru, besides six men, being among the killed. The result of the fight completely settled the attempted revolution.

INDIANS ON THE WARPATH.

Bloods Go Out on a Horse Stealing Raid.

They Are Pursued by Police and Battle Follows Which Results Fatally.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 24.—A report has reached here that a battle took place yesterday just across the international boundary line about 50 miles from Assiniboine, Mont., between a force of mounted police and Blood Indians.

The Indians made a raid on a band of horses, the property of the police, and got away with them.

Ten policemen pursued the redskins and surprising them, commenced firing. The first volley killed two Indians and wounded several others.

The police lost one man and several were wounded. The fighting is still on.

Col. Bates, commander at Ft. Assiniboine, has ordered a troop of cavalry to take a station at the Blackfoot agency as a precautionary measure to restrain the Indians there from taking part in the fighting.

WANTED TO KISS HIM.

Vera Ava Springs a New Sensation.

Major Bundy Objected to Her Loving Ways and Got His Face Severely Scratched.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Ann O'Delia Diss De Bar, now known as Vera Ava, sprang a new sensation yesterday by creating a lively scene in the office of Major J. C. Bundy, editor of the Religious Philosophical Journal.

She called at the office and in the course of a brief conversation expressed a wish to kiss him. The major had no desire to smack Vera's warm, red lips and told her so.

She at once attacked him and scratched his face and would have done him worse damage had she not been overpowered and ejected from the building.

LEVEES ARE CAVING IN.

Much Alarm Felt To-Day in New Orleans.

Steamships Are Loading Rapidly, Fearing that the Wharves May Tumble Into the River.

New Orleans, Oct. 24.—A serious cave-in of the levee is creating much alarm.

It is in front of the French market and extends from the Harrison steamship wharf to a point below the luggar landing.

The Harrison steamships and others are loading rapidly as several of the wharfs appear likely to tumble into the river at any time. No measures for permanent relief have yet been adopted, all parties interested looking to temporary measures for the present.

TRYING TO BAR DAVITT OUT.

London, Oct. 24.—It is said that leading Tory lawyers have been engaged to ascertain whether there is any precedent for admission of the ex-convict who has been in penal servitude, to parliament. There is now no doubt that a strong Tory protest will be offered against permitting Davitt to take his seat. His election is already assured.

THE TARIFF A TAX.

Bold Words and True, Spoken by Russell

In His Campaign Against the Monopolies.

Massachusetts is Fighting a Sturdy Battle

Side by Side with the People of Ohio.

Some Hard Nuts for the Bloated Republican High Tax Advocates to Answer, if They Want the Vote of the Workingman This Fall.

Boston, Oct. 24.—(Special)—Hon John E. Russell, the pioneer tariff reformer of Massachusetts, addressed an audience here last night.

Throughout his remarks the telling points were quickly grasped by his hearers, and his eloquent manner of illustrating the rise of the great tariff reform wave which is now sweeping over the entire country was received with great applause. His cutting remarks on the labor record of Col. Allen pleased the audience immensely, and so also did his comments on the various speakers imported by the republicans of the state in the present campaign.

Mr. Russell's speech was as follows:

The republican speakers, native and imported, are discussing the tariff bill without touching a single principle.

Reed jests and jeers, exhibits the prosperity of an enterprising, industrious and ambitious people, enjoying free trade over a continent among 65,000,000 of people, and asserts that their success does not come from themselves, their free institutions and their resources, but from a system of taxation.

Dingley, the lime kiln patriot, of Maine, who represents the interests of New England on the ways and means committee by increasing the duty on Canada lime, in the interest of his constituents, 300 per cent., so undervalues his audiences that he tells them duties do not affect prices, and that the revenues of the government are paid by foreigners.

Mr. Lodge is above this kind of argument, but he descends to an exhibition of prices of selected articles, some of them unaffected by the tariff, to show that duties do not enhance values.

Mr. Hoar, of North Adams, pityingly exhibits the ignorance of Mr. Gladstone on economic subjects, and then displays statesmanship by asserting that the prosperity of the country dates from the war tariff.

If the duties are not a tax, why does the McKinley bill in express terms agree to pay back, less 1 per cent., to any one exporting the goods on which this was collected? The Standard Oil company collected of the government the duties paid on tin and lumber used in the packages of its enormous export trade. The meat canners of Chicago are paid back the duties on tin cans exported. Why should fishermen have salt free of duty if it is not a tax on it?

Are we not called upon to partriotically pay $8,000,000 or $9,000,000 a year on tin to enable McKinley's constituents to start the business?

Mr. Lodge in one place shows the reduction in sugar because the duty is off; and in the Connecticut valley, at Northampton, congratulates the tobacco men on the high price of their crop because of increased duty on competing Sumatra leaf. Common sense knows that the tariff, where it protects, enables the manufacturer to raise the price of his goods where he is in competition with the foreigner. So it is a tax. It is more than a tax, because not only do the people pay what the government collects, but they also pay all the duty enables the home manufacturer to exact.

In scientific taxation government should receive every penny of the taxes, less cost of collection, but under our system the least part goes to the treasury; the vats amount is paid to individuals on two pretences, to enable them to pay higher wages and give a home market to the farmer. We have 65,000,000 people—no less than 5,000,000 can be protected. The greater part of those would be able to live under absolute free trade, consequently the whole system of protection is for the few. It is questionable if the general business of the country, aside from agriculture, is not hampered and injured by the protection system.

The farming interests bears the main burden. The prices of all agricultural products are regulated in the world's market. The farmer buys at high prices and sells at low prices; meanwhile he is deluded by schedules of duties on corn, pork, rye, wheat and vegetables to protect him from the pauper labor of Canada. How this works may be seen from McKinley's speech in reply to Gov. Campbell, where he states that the Canada farmer selling his wheat at Buffalo would get 90 cents for it, and have to pay 25 cents a bushel for the privilege.

Suppose that is true; is that protection to the American farmer? No, it is only a loss to the business of railroads, elevators and commerce. It keeps Canada wheat away, but does not affect prices, because the price is the same on both sides of the line. Neither market makes the price. Liverpool makes it. Our duty prevents our people handling it, and builds up Canada's transportation and commerce.

Mr. Hoar and such statesmen declare that our prosperity depends on taxes. We thrive in spite of them. We thrive on free trade between all the states and 65,000,000 people. Foolish restrictions and absurd laws cannot repress the vigor of a recent people with free institutions.

Tom Reed said in congress he wanted a Chinese wall, if necessary, to keep the home market. Senator Hawley declared that if we were shut in without intercourse with the world we would be rich and happy. He said: "I am tired of the rot of commerce."

Is there not a historical example of such illiberal seclusion in the Chinese empire? A nation of great antiquity, of wide resources, of variety of soil and climate, possessed of a literature of high value, and able to produce all that is necessary for her people, yet nowhere is progress more impeded, and nowhere is labor more the slave of capital.

Mr. Allen of Michigan, who worked in this canvass until it was found out that he was at home and in congress a blatant free coinage man, informed us that Massachusetts could not have free raw materials; she must take the tariff as it is. That is, she must pay a tax on wool, lumber, coal, iron ore, scrap iron, salt, etc.; she must see her ancient industry in iron follow her commerce, and her woolen mills turned into shoddy mills, her business with her natural customer, Canada, cut off by endless restrictions, to enrich Pennsylvania. At the same time she must listen to Elijah Morse, Senator Hoar and similar political economists, who tell her her prosperity is enhanced by the taxes.

Can there be any greater slander of the commonwealth than the assertion that she thrives not by the ambition of her people, their intelligence, their institutions and their love of liberty, but by a system of taxing the consumers of the country for her benefit?

It is a baseless slander. There is not an industry of the state that owes its origin to protective ariffs; there is not one that would not be carried on with vigor and success if our whole system of indirect taxes was abandoned. I defy the men on the other platform to mention an industry of Massachusetts which would be killed or even crippled by sheer free trade. Ninety per cent. of our people are occupied in pursuits that protection taxes; 50 per cent. of the remainder could not claim to be benefited by it. The tax on raw material more than nullifies to this small per cent. of our people all possible protection.

Mr. Hoar, in spite of all exposure of the fallacies of the census comparisons, clamors that our agriculture is rapidly improving. There is not a village assessor in Massachusetts that will not contradict his statements; there is not a bank officer but will tell him that country farms are not a security for loans, and that all increase of farm values is due to the farms being turned into city lots or occupied as summer residences by city people.

I claimed at Newburyport that our shipbuilding had been taxed out of existence, our foreign trade destroyed. Then comes Mr. Coggeswell and boasts that the Fifty-first congress had passed laws to restore it that had been opposed by every democrat. True enough. What were the restorative acts? New taxes for bounties and subsidies.

On whom do the taxes fall? On those last men in the line that protection cannot reach, men who cannot protect themselves.

The farmer and the laborer are the packhorses of our system. One cannot raise the price of his products, the other cannot advance the price of the work of his hands.

They say we cannot compete with pauper labor. Pennsylvania is filled with pauper labor, with Huns, Poles and the miserably poor of all races. We could compete with them but for the tariff on coal, coke, iron ore, scrap iron, lumber. Inhabiting these thin soils by the shore of the black sea, commerce is our birthright, manufacturing our necessity. We have no mines, forests or flocks; we are dependent upon free raw material, and commerce depends upon ability to import them.

Our fathers knew the true political economy for Massachusetts when they insisted upon the lowest possible taxes and stipulated for free wool. The prosperity we enjoy is due to free trade over half the continent; give us more of it. Give us free trade with Canada and Mexico, and the capital of Massachusetts would have fresh fields of conquest if we are not degenerate children of our fathers.

LABOR SAVING MACHINES.

They Result in Benefit to the Laborer.

An Improvement in the Pencoyd Iron Company's Works by Which One Man Does the Work of Twenty.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—A crowning effort in the line of labor-saving machinery is under course of construction in the blooming department of the works of the Pencoyd Iron company, on the west bank of the Schuylkill, opposite Manayunk, whereby a dozen men will be able to accomplish the same amount of work formerly turned out by ten times that number.

This, however, will not throw any men out of employment. On the contrary, the new machinery will so increase the capacity and production that additional labor will be required in the other departments.

The new process is now in course of construction. The mill will be 30 feet high, 100 feet wide and 400 feet long. The operation known as "blooming" consists of reducing the immense ingots to rolls as they leave the furnaces. This was formerly done with steam hammers, requiring large numbers of men and entailing the most severe manual labor. Under the new system all this will be done with the aid of hydraulic machinery, the entire manipulation of which can be operated, even when the full capacity of the works is employed, by at least a dozen men.

The new mill be equipped with four vertical furnaces and two horizontal engines of 2,000 horse-power, connected with a single shaft and geared to the mill. Two solid steel gears four and eight inches in diameter, worked by an electric crane on an elevated railroad, will handle the great masses of steel, and one man can handle an ingot weighing ten tons, where under the old system it would have been impossible to concentrate enough manual labor to handle it. At present the ingots rarely exceed two tons in weight, and it requires a dozen men to handle them.

Much of the mechanism is entirely new, and has never before been put into practical use. The rolls used for rolling the large ingots from the furnaces weigh 12 tons, and by the electric crane can be lifted out and replaced by another set in two hours. Gas will be used for fuel and heating purposes.

I. C. Christie, the master mechanic of the company, spoke enthusiastically yesterday of the advantages of the new system over the old. Not only did he dwell upon the vast increase in business anticipated by the company, but he spoke as well of the men who will be relieved of the burdensome work. He said it would require a more intelligent class of men than the average workmen to operate the new machinery, but none of the old men would be thrown out of employment. The old hammers will still be used for miscellaneous forging, and much larger forces will be required in the finishing departments. The new mill will be in operation about the first of April.

CAN IT BE FOR BEN?

Perhaps Wanamaker Will Also Smile.

A Keg of Good Old Scotch Whisky Sent to the President by Carnegie to Tickle His Palate.

New York, Oct. 24.—In a day or two Benjamin Harrison, president of the United States, will have an iron-bound oaken barrel, filled with fine old Scotch whiskey. It came over on the Furnessia, with an inscription on the package showing it was from Andrew Carnegie.

The Ganger knocked the bung out of the barrel yesterday, and in doing so spilled about four good drinks. His measurements, and a subsequent sample which he took of it, showed that the barrel contained 14 gallons, and that it was old, soft and mellow smoky Scotch.

After swallowing the sample, he smiled broadly, and put the bung back with evident regret.

MISSING TIFFIN MAN.

Tiffin, O., Oct. 24.—(Special)—The family of Frank Mahrer, a laboring man of this city, are alarmed over his disappearance. He started to work Monday morning and has not been seen nor heard from since.

A wife and several small children are left in destitute circumstances.

WILL GO TO PRISON.

London, Oct. 24.—Wm. Henry Balkwell of Plainfield, N. J., has been sentenced to two months' imprisonment with hard labor for having obtained money under false pretenses from the warden of Merton college, Oxford university. Balkwell represented himself to be Philip Brooks, a novelist, of Cambridge, Mass., and a son of Bishop Phillips Brooks.

BICYCLE RACE.

New York, Oct. 24.—Bicycle race score at noon: Martin, 1,402; Ashinger, 1,390; Lamb, 1,308; Schock, 1,293; Albert, 1,222; Boyst, 1,207.

A DEN OF SNAKES.

A Remarkable Find in the Vicinity of Halton, Kas.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 24.—The people of Halton are excited over the discovery near that town of a den containing thousands of snakes, including many species and all sizes of the crawling reptiles. The vicinity of the den is alive with snakes seemingly, coming in from all directions. They are thick in the grass and underbrush and black and blue racers are seen running through the trees all headed for the spot.

The different varieties of snakes are hard to determine, as the most careful count and examination each time reveals a new kind. So far there have been found to dwell in this den the garter-snake, blue racer, blacksnake, rattlesnake, copperhead, viper and many more or less noted species.

Yesterday every conceivable vehicle was made to do service in conveying curiosity-seekers to the den. Even the omnibuses and bargage wagons were employed, and the whole town was out to the snake den which is now the all-absorbing topic of conversation. Those who have dared to go out and witness the scene awake at night from horrible dreams, and many nervous women refrain from going to see the sight upon the advice of their neighbors, who are unable to get a good night's sleep since gazing upon this seething mass of snakes.

WAITING FOR THE COMMISSION.

Washington, Oct. 24.—As the civil service commission was not prepared to certify candidates for appointment in the Indian service on October last, when the rules were to have gone into operation, the president has extended the time until March 1, next, provided they go into operation in any district at an earlier date, if the commission finds itself prepared to make certifications.

RAILROAD SOLD.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 24.—The Nebraska & Western railroad, running from Sioux City to O'Neill, Neb., was sold under foreclosure proceedings this morning to Garretson, of Sioux City, and Wickersham, of New York, as trustees of a new company for $2,000,000. It will form a direct route in connection with the Sioux City Northern and the Great Northern roads. G

KANSAS ALLIANCE.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 24.—The Kansas Farmers' alliance has patched up its troubles by the election at Salina of W. H. Utley as president. The McGrath men claim this as a defeat for the union labor element. The sub-treasury scheme, the Ocala platform and President Polk's course were indorsed.

DONNELLY ON THE STAND.

Minneapolis, Oct. 24.—It was Donnelly's turn in his libel suit against the Pioneer Press to-day. He was called in rebuttal and in a characteristically smooth and imperturbable way contradicted, refuted or explained all the charges of bribery and political dishonesty made against him.

PUBLIC BUILDING SITE.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The treasury agent in California has recommended that one of two sites be selected in Stockton, Cal., for a public building, viz.: Corner of Sutter and Channel streets at $10,000, or the corner of California and Market streets at $21,000.

GOOD WORK ON THE COAST

Life Savers at the Wreck of the Arago.

They Rescued the Crew and Saved a Valuable Vessel from Total Destruction.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Superintendent Kimball of the life saving service has received a report of the saving of the steamer Arago and its crew and passengers, wrecked Oct. 3, on Coos bay, Oregon. The vessel and persons aboard were saved by means of the use of the Lyle gun and breeches buoy apparatus, being the first time these life saving agents were ever practically used and demonstrating their superiority in the opinion of Superintendent Kimball over all others.

The vessel stranded on a bar, while the ocean was running very high. From a tug 150 yards distant, by means of the Lyle gun, with four ounces of powder to the charge, a line was fired to the Arago. A whip line was then sent aboard her and by this whip line four 120-fathoms line-hawsers were hauled aboard and made fast. By the whip line a hawser was extended from the mast of the vessel to the mast of the tug, the breeches run to the vessel along the hawser and the crew and passengers landed on the tug.

The tug then took by turn the four hawsers and attaching an anchor to each dropped them seawards. This prevented the vessel from going further upon the bar, and when the tide arose the vessel floated and was saved with but little damage.

So extraordinary was this work by the life saving service that Customs Collector Stewart took it on himself to send the following letter to the treasury department on the subject:

"Coos Bay, Ore., Oct. 9, 1891.—As you will see by the enclosed wreck report, the fine steel steamer 'Arago,' in going out of this harbor, on the 3d instant, got stranded in the south spit, just inside the bar. She was in very dangerous position, the seas breaking over her, and the swells so heavy that nothing but a life-boat could live in such waters.

"The life saving crew at this place, although a new crew, did most heroic and efficient service—preventing the loss of a single life, and resulting in the saving of the steamer—the first one ever saved here in like danger. * * * * * *

"We all agree that, without the aid of the life saving service, the Arago would now have to be reported 'lost,' while many of the passengers and crew would now be sleeping in watery graves.

"To witness such a disaster, and such a thorough rescue, will convince anyone of the wisdom of treating the life saving service with a liberality befitting a brave and humane people."

PAYMASTER SMITH.

He Has Filed His Annual Report With the President.

Washington, Oct. 24.—General Wm. Smith, paymaster general of the army, has submitted his annual report to the secretary of war. The report says the paymasters during the year were charged with $16,611,754, and the amount expended by them was $15,106,408.

The report shows a decrease in expenditures of $52,46. Of the amount expended during the past year all has been properly audited.

The report dwells upon the great risks run by the paymasters on the frontier posts and of the responsibility of disbursements based on accounts which have especially submitted for approval and only be allowed upon the order of the secretary of war. Yet such expenditures, it says, are disallowed by the treasury department in its final settlement and are charged to the paymaster, whose only offense is obeying his superior officer.

As an example the extra expenses resulting from courtmartials which have been approved by the secretary of war and have been disallowed by the treasury department are cited.

NEW INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The commissioner of Indian affairs, with the approval of the secretary of the interior, has selected Mt. Pleasant, Isabella county, Michigan, as the site for the new Indian industrial school for which $25,000 was appropriated under a recent act of congress.

COLLECTING RAUM'S DEBTS.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Justice Cox of the district court has directed the sale, through trustees, of local real estate owned by Green B. Raum, to satisfy the judgment claim of A. L. Conger, pursuant to the suit brought against the defendant and others as trustees under various deeds of trust aggregating $20,000 several months ago.

THE MASSES TURN OUT

To Greet the Next Governor of Ohio.

The Farmers and Wool Growers Present

To Hear What Campbell Has to Say on the Question of the Hour—Hilarity at the Highest Possible Pitch.

Zanesville, Oct. 24.—(Special)—Gov. Campbell spent yesterday afternoon with the Guernsey county wool growers. The town of Cambridge was literally jammed with people, the crowds outnumbering those of McKinley day two to one. Another significant feature of the Cambridge meeting was the large number of farmers present. There were no prizes offered to induce them to come in, as was the case when McKinley was there. They came because they wanted to see and hear Gov. Campbell.

The governor's speech at Cambridge was devoted to the tariff and it relation to wool prices and the decrease in the price of farm lands. He was most happy in his comparisons and the large audience cheered him to the end.

When the governor reached Zanesville he was met at the station by a large number of citizens and an impromptu procession was formed and headed by a band playing "The Campbells Are Coming."

Major McKinley was here on Monday and held two meetings. The opera house was filled both afternoon and evening, but at Gov. Campbell's meeting the building was packed and a large overflow meeting of fully 2,000 people was organized on the outside of the building.

Gov. Campbell made a tariff address there and then turned the meeting over to Hon. J. W. Nichol, of Washington, D. C. When the governor appeared on the stage of the opera house he was greeted with a storm of applause.

He began his speech by telling his audience how hard it was this year to please the republican newspapers. One day they charged him with being a calamity croaker. The next day they would say he was too flippant and his meetings too hilarous.

"There will be some hilarity in this state the day after election," said the governor, "and to use an expression of the street, the republican editors who are now finding fault will not be in it." (Applause.)

The governor the detailed his experience at East Liverpool and asked his audience what they thought of the action of McKinley's protected friends.

"If," says the governor, "there are any manufacturers in Zanesville who treat their men as do the boss potters of East Liverpool, and I trust there are not, I have to say to them that they are no better than the slave drivers before the war."

Taking up the McKinley law, Gov. Campbell said, "There is not a paragraph or a line in that measure that was asked for by the consumers of this country. (Applause.) The people understood what the election of 1888 meant. It meant that the protected industries had put up the money to elect Benjamin Harrison and a republican congress and the public, the consumers of this country, had too much sense to waste time laying their cause before a packed jury. (Applause.)

"This is the reason the consumers of this country did not appear before the committee of ways and means of which Major McKinley was the chairman. (Applause.)

"Major McKinley says his law has had one birthday. So it has. Last November the people of this country christened it an infanty, and this November they will give it a funeral." (Continued applause and cries of "Right you are, Jimmy.")

The governor then took up the tin plate question. He said that during the past four years the major had made so bold as to chirp a little on the tin question. "The major's tin plate mill is something like the milk sickness—always in the next county."

The governor then read a letter from the Cincinnati Corrugated company to one of their customers, in which they stated that in the future they would use imported tin. This is the Piqua company in whose establishment McKinley performed his now celebrated tin plate fake.

The governor referred to the letter to the letter of President Harrison and then read an affidavit from the Demmler company which accompanied a box which was sent to himself at Columbus. "You see," said the governor, "you can get an affidavit with each box of Demmler tin." The affidavit showed that the company imported tin to make their American terne plate.

He then gave a ludicrous account of McKinley's tin dipping fake at Piqua. Major McKinley knows that he was either imposed on by the Piqua company or else he attempted to perpetrate a fraud on the people of Ohio. "Now, in his speech yesterday he accused me of being reckless in my statements. I want you to answer the question. No dodging as you did at Ada, major. Were you a dupe or were you a partner in that fraud? You have had three weeks to answer. If you were not a dupe and were cognizant of what a wrong was being perpetrated, then you deserve to be turned underneath a majority that would make Jules Brough's look like a mole hill." (Applause.)

SENATOR BRICE.

He Will Resign the Chairmanship of the National Committee After the Nominations.

Pittsburg, Oct. 24.—Senator Brice passed through here yesterday and in an interview said that after the presidential nomination was made he would probably not be in charge of the national democratic committee. He virtually admitted that he would retire and give place to somebody else.

AUSTRIAN PRINTERS TO STRIKE.

Vienna, Oct. 24.—The printers of Austria intend to inaugurate a strike on Saturday, November 7. The leaders of the movement assert that it will materially assist the striking printers of Germany by causing the transfer of work from Austria to Germany, thus forcing the latter country employing printers to grant their men or to concede the demands of their men or admit their inability to handle a largely increased volume of business.

MAY GO INCOG.

Paris, Oct. 24.—A German personage of high rank recently came to induce the czar to allow an interview with the German emperor.

This effort elicited the following reply from the Russian foreign office: "The czar's safety requires secrecy in making a journey. The czar has reserved the right to arrive at a spontaneous decision in the matter."

TAXED TO DEATH.

Rome, Oct. 24.—Considerable discontent exists among the business classes over the severe exaction of the tax of 14 per cent. on profits. Many find themselves unable to meet the demand and in some instances industrial enterprises will be given up on account of the pressure of this and other burdens.

CABLE CONNECTIONS RESTORED.

SLOW POISON FOR THREE.

A Sensational Story from New York.

The Awful Vengeance of an Angered Girl.

She Quarreled With Her Room Mate on Religious Matters and Concocted a Plan to Put Three Persons in Their Graves.

New York, Oct. 24.—(Special)—Mrs. Jessie Elliott, a dressmaker, lives at No. 145 Sixth avenue. She has a sister, Miss Florence Adams, whose house is at No. 179 Waverly place. Of late, however, Miss Adams has spent much of her time at her sister's. Mrs. Elliott has a colored domestic named Hattie Thompson.

The three women were an industrious and quiet colony, to which there was added a fourth member four weeks ago. The newcomer was Miss Lillian O'Keefe. She is a hatter. She, too, had lived at No. 179 Waverly place. Mrs. Elliott let one of her rooms to Miss O'Keefe, who is described as 27 years of age, short, stout and a good-looking blonde.

The addition of the pretty hat-maker introduced an element of discord into the colony. She is said to have quarrelled with Florence Adams about religion. Miss Adams is a protestant and Miss O'Keefe is a Catholic. They had frequent quarrels the people in the house say. Mrs. Elliott was taken ill with a cold and the argumentative lodger made herself useful in waiting upon Mrs. Elliott. Both Mrs. Elliott and Hattie Thompson concluded that after all the blonde hat-maker was a nice girl.

On Sunday, October 11, Miss O'Keefe and Miss Adams had a heated discussion over their religious differences. The quarrel became very bitter and Miss O'Keefe got very angry. She said to Mrs. Elliott:

"I'd like to give Florence Adams a dose of slow poison."

Mrs. Elliott thought Miss O'Keefe made this remark in a moment of excitement. She didn't dream that Miss O'Keefe spoke in earnest.

The next day the lodger assisted Hattie Thompson in preparing the evening meal. She made some toast. She seasoned it, she afterward confessed, with rat poison and sulphuric acid. The toast was for Mrs. Elliott. Then Miss O'Keefe cooked some hash and garnished the dish in the same way that she had treated the toast, it is alleged. The colored servant ate the hash. Last of all Miss O'Keefe is said to have doctored a glass of milk for Florence Adams.

"What makes this milk look so queer?" asked Miss Adams. "Is it watered?"

"That's all right," Lillian O'Keefe is reported to have replied.

That night all three women who had partaken of Miss O'Keefe's preparations were sick. Hattie Thompson was very ill. Miss O'Keefe prescribed tea and cider for this patient. Mrs. Elliott she treated next morning with more toast. They were now so ill that Mrs. Elliott sent for Dr. Halstead, of Fourth and Tenth streets. He brought his stomach pump along. He used it in the cases of Mrs. Elliott and the servant. Miss Adams was not so ill as the others. He said the women had been poisoned.

Then Mrs. Elliott told the doctor what she heard Lillian O'Keefe say about her desire to give slow poison to Florence Adams. Miss O'Keefe was summoned into the presence of the doctor and his patients and charged with having poisoned the food. She denied the charge.

The condition of the three women did not improve very rapidly. Dr. Halstead was sent for again the same day. This time he directly taxed Miss O'Keefe with poisoning the food. She broke down, dropped upon her knees and confessed between her sobs that she had put sulphuric acid and rat poison in the food she had prepared.

Her intention had been to poison Florence Adams, she said, but she wanted to try it on Mrs. Elliott and the colored servant to see how it would work. Then she would know how much to give Miss Adams.

Dr. Halstead told Mrs. Elliott to send for a policeman to arrest Miss O'Keefe. Miss Adams started for an officer. The front door was locked. Miss O'Keefe ran out of the rear door, jumped over the back fence and escaped.

She remained in hiding and the police could not find her.

On the Thursday following her escape Miss O'Keefe's father, Mrs. Elliott says, called upon her and tried to fix the matter up.

"Send your daughter to me," said Mrs. Elliott, "and I will do the fixing with her."

A warrant was sworn out for Miss O'Keefe's arrest. Yesterday Charles street station officers discovered the hiding place of the alleged poisoner and will arrest her to-day.

Mrs. Elliott is sick yet, having been ill previous to the time she took the poison, but the other two women have entirely recovered.

HONEST OLD HOLMES.

The Democracy Getting Ready to Increase Its Majority.

Millersburg, Oct. 24.—Hon. George W. Hewitt, of Connecticut., closed his campaign in this county last night here in Agricultural hall.

Mr. Hewitt has made seven speeches in the county to the largest audiences ever known in the villages.

After the close of these meetings a mock election was held in the room, and out of nearly 500 votes polled only three were thrown out. This shows close study on the part of voters.

So far no republican speeches have been made in the county, and none are announced yet. Speeches or no speeches, the result will be the same. Republicans do nothing but stand around on the street corners and curse the Australian ballot law.

MORE SUGAR BOUNTY.

Cane Converters Coming in for the Show.

The Man Who Raises Wheat and Corn and Oats Not In It With This Administration.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Commissioner Mason to-day received the first application for bounty on cane sugar manufactured under the new tariff law. It came from Joseph W. Dougherty and Co., of Louisiana. The amount of sugar manufactured upon which bounty is asked is 65,963 pounds and the bounty is $1,319. So far applications for bounty on 3,190,427 pounds of sugar of all kinds have been received. The bounty on this amounts to about $60,000 but up to date no bounty has been paid by the treasury department.

The internal revenue bureau is advised that applications for bounty will be filed in large numbers within the next two weeks from cane sugar producers.

REST AND HEALTH TO MOTHER AND CHILD.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

NEW YORK'S EXPENSES.

An Indication of What It Costs to Run America's Biggest Town.

New York, Oct. 24.—As an indication of what it costs to run New York City, the action of the board of estimate and apportionment to-day is interesting. The board passed upon estimates amounting to about $7,500,000. Estimates for the police department were first considered. A total allowance of $5,018,801.65 was made, against an allowance of $4,809,515.38 for the present year. The amount asked for 1892 was $5,354,693.30. Among the items approved were $12,500 for new patrol wagons, $105,000 for new station houses and sites; salaries of commissioners and members of the force, $4,603,743.95; salaries of clerks, telegraph superintendent, operators and matrons, $101,040; supplies, $80,109.35; alterations and repairs to station houses, $25,000, and $10,000 for contingent expenses. The bureau of elections was allowed $257,800 and $54,000 was allowed for advertising the nomination of candidates. The commissioners of accounts were allowed $22,500, the civil service board $25,000, charitable institutions, reformatories and hospitals, $1,200,000.

SQUIRE'S MEETING

In the Fourth Ward Was Called

To Enable Him to Replace Horace Merrill on the Executive Committee—There is no Vacancy.

The good citizens of the Fourth ward were somewhat astonished last evening when a brass band halted in front of the wigwam on the corner of Forrer and Division streets and struck up a lively air.

Naturally everybody turned out, democrats and republicans alike, to ascertain what was up and share in the fun, if there was any on the go.

When they arrived on the scene an exceedingly wet blanket was dropped on their ardor.

W. I. Squire was hustling around distributing fire works among the children. His lieutenants were setting off red fire here and there in the vicinity.

The republicans winked knowingly at one another, while democrats looked on. The band played "Comrades" and other sweet and soothing airs, Squire and his fellows distributed fireworks and burned red fire, and all for the edification of the spectators. The republicans have become so accustomed to the reign of those illustrious bosses that they take everything for granted, and calmly wait for what comes next.

After the boys had burned up all the red fire and shot off all the fireworks, the band played "Pock-a-Boo" and marched into the hall, followed by 50 or 60 boys. Mr. Squire stood at the door, hat on one side, cigar elevated heavenward, and an expression on his face that suggested "Master of all I behold," which, when the red lights were put on, made a beautiful tableau.

The men were all in, about 20 in number, the Grand Mogul with majestic wave of his hand bid the boys enter and fill up the vacant seats.

Dignified and stately, Mr. Squire took a position on the platform, turned very deliberately and faced the audience in all his splendor.

Mr. Squire said that all present, of course, understood why the meeting had been called, that it had been authorized by the central committee, etc. A presiding officer would be necessary and he suggested the name of J. G. Morganthaler. One of his boys seconded, the question was put, the kids howled aye, and Morganthaler took his superior's place.

Mr. Morganthaler acknowledged the great honor and stated that Mr. J. Kent Hamilton and other prominent republicans were booked for a speech, but for some reason or other Mr. Hamilton et al. were not present, and he would go further down on the program and call on Mr. Fellows.

The speaker managed to kill time telling what he knew about the tariff and a great deal he didn't know. He made statements that will no doubt be remembered and appreciated by the voters of the ward, when he said: "Now, my friends, don't let anyone pull you by the nose."

"They can't pull us by the nose, now that we have the Australian ballot system," said an old gentleman present.

"That's right, they can't buy you any more." (Nothing insinuating about that.) He continued: "If they do, take their money, promise anything they ask, and then go inside and vote as you please."

The speaker finally quit and the chair called for another orator, when the Grand Mogul came to his feet with, "Gentlemen, before the meeting proceeds, there is a little business to be disposed of. As you all know, there is a vacancy in the central committee. I therefore move that Mr. John Lorenz be selected to represent the Fourth ward on the county central committee."

After a long and painful silence, some of Squire's boys squeaked out a second, and it was accepted, notwithstanding the speaker was not recognized by the chair.

At this point, Fleck Sneider jumped up and nominated R. Stutzenbach to fill the vacancy, which received a prompt second.

Squire responded in an address eulogizing his man, and endeavoring to impress on the few present the necessity of distributing the honors. That it was best to put Lorenz on the central committee. "It is in the interest of harmony," he said. "We must all make sacrifices at times. I have done it again and again. It is politics. There is no time for a republican to grind his razor to cut another republican. The fight is going to be a little one, and unless peace is restored, the party is endangered and defeat will surely follow." When he spoke of sacrifices everybody smiled.

Squire had no more than finished his plea when Mr. Stutzenbach withdrew his name, and when he did so, said: "I want it distinctly understood that I am a republican, born and raised here, and I will not permit any reflections on my loyalty. I consider the insinuation made by Mr. Squire a direct insult."

This gritty speech started a commotion. The boys howled and the men cheered. Squire jumped up and they hissed. He tried to explain something, but they wouldn't let him. The chair at this point put the question. Squire's boys voted aye, and as there were but two or three republicans present, Lorenz was declared a member of the central committee.

After this some one was called to the platform, to kill some more time, during which there was a quiet confab on the side.

Stutzebach and Sneider were captured by Squire, as they were leaving the hall. With winsome words the big President of the State League tried to coo them under his wing, but it did not work.

The President was After Merrill.

The truth of the situation is, there is no vacancy in the central committee as is yet known. Horace Merrill, secretary of this committee, moved out of the Fourth ward into the Eighth. Mr. Merrill is a strong anti-Squire man, and, as might be expected Mr. Squire is not slow to take advantage of such an opportunity to deal an enemy a smart blow and score a point for himself. Mr. Merrill was seen by a Bee this morning, but he was not inclined to discuss the question just yet. Nevertheless there is fun ahead.

Delays are dangerous. Take Simmons Liver Regulator in time for dyspepsia, biliousness and all diseases of the liver.

SPORTING.

The American Base Ball association has re-elected Zack Phelps president, and given Chicago a franchise, which means that some club or clubs, will have to give way.

Another "confidence" committee has been appointed with power to pave the way for dumping some of the clubs, and Columbus is on the list for slaughter. It is very probable that when the "confidence" committee gets through its work the association will be Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore in the east, with Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Milwaukee in the west.

Columbus and Louisville will fight hard against such an outcome, but the directory of the association has been so arranged that while they may outkick the opposition, the opposition can at the same time control enough votes to kick them out.

Health is wealth. Take Simmons Liver Regulator for all sickness caused by diseased liver.

WILL BE NO LET UP.

November to be Marked by Heavy Storms.

The Greatest Disturbances Are Yet to Take Place.

Professor Foster's Weather Forecasts—The Causes of Our Storms—Interesting Matters Very Ably Discussed.

(Copyrighted 1891 by W. T. Foster.)

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 23.—We come now to consider November weather. The interior of the United States fared comparatively well through September and part of October, while the eastern coasts and the west of Europe suffered terribly.

Storm waves move from west to east, but the maximum of storm influences has a retrograde movement approaching this continent from the east and in the history of the recent most terrible storms on both sodes of the Atlantic that have occurred for many years, the outlook for November in the United States does not promise all sunshine.

Evidences are accumulating for the verification of my prediction that the most disastrous storms of recent times would occur during the latter part of 1891. and the first half of 1892.

The first storm wave of November will be due to leave the Pacific coast about October 30, cross the great interior valleys from October 31 to November 2, and reach the Atlantic coast about the 3d. A cold wave, severe for the time of year, may be expected to appear in the northwest following this storm center and cause frosts in all the western and most of the southern states, closing the cotton growing season by November 5. Our Winter weather will approach from the northwest and winter will set in earlier there and be more severe than in the northeastern states, and this storm wave will be followed by wintry weather in the upper Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys.

Among the farmers and planters the impression is general that we will have an early and severe winter and present indications are quite favorable to this idea. Therefore farm work is being pushed rapidly. This is especally the case in the cotton states where cotton is being rushed into market at an enormous rate, and this, notwithstanding the early killing frosts, is made use of to keep down the price of cotton. Planters will see their mistake a little later on in not holding their cotton.

Weather and Scientific Notes

One great need of the time is a physical basis for meteorology. Humboldt declared that the lack of such a basis explained why meteorology was making such slow progress and the one principal effort in these notes is to establish that in electricity we may find the basis sought. The contest lies between heat and electricity as the cause of weather changes and everything in these letters has a bearing on this discussion. The government weather bureau officials and all the heads of institutions of learning in Europe and America are advocates of the heat theory while a few of us are battling for the other side.

I deny that gravitation is a pull and assert that it is a push. The planets float in the elements that surround the sun and the moon floats in the elements that surround the earth and these bodies are not held to their companies by any power that can be called a pull.

Before this theory can be accepted it is necessary to better understand electricity and its effects as seen in magnetism. For the purpose of this discussion we will consider that electricity is matter in the most attenuated form known to our senses. It is no more difficult to accept this theory than to accept Sir Isaac Newton's theory that light is matter and that the different colors combined in white light are made of different kinds of matter. It may yet be determined that Newton was right and that the indivisible colors of light are identical with the original forms of matter. Newton was certainly right in holding that there is but one kind of electricity, the positive being the larger and the negative the smaller quantity, the variations in its influence being accounted for by the different conditions under which it operates.

Put very salty water into a glass jar and on top of it a layer of fresh water; next a layer of linseed oil, then kerosene oil and on top of this a layer of gasoline. Quick silver will go to the bottom of all this while above it will be the earth's atmosphere and above that the electricity or ether of space. Meteors will float out into space leaving our atmosphere, a balloon will float several miles high in the atmosphere, a cork will float on top of the gasoline, light pine will float between the gasoline and coal oil, heavier pine between the kerosene and linseed oil, still heavier pine at the top of the fresh water, an egg will sink to the top of the salt water, limestone to the top of the quick silver and gold to the bottom. These substances take their positions in accord with their own and the density of the elements in which they are placed and there can be but little doubt that the same influences operate in locating the orbits of the planets; but with these planets, if not with all bodies of condensed matter, there is another element that has much to do with their buoyancy and that element is an electric atmosphere.

There is an electric atmosphere surrounding every body, great or small, of condensed matter. The electric current passing over a wire swells out all around the wire, which can easily be detected by instruments. Put a wire through a hole in a glass plate and scatter filings on the glass. By tapping the glass the filings will arrange themselves in magnetic lines and move toward the wire. This electric atmosphere is so strung outside of the conducting wire that an astatic pendulum made to oscillate across this electric atmosphere will change the direction of its oscillations. Charge with electricity a moist paper ball suspended by a silk fiber and the electricity will form a sphere of an atmosphere—we might call it an atmosphere—around the paper ball.

All electricians declare the earth to be a magnet. Guthrie, an English authority and professor of physics at the Royal school of mines, says: "The earth is to be regarded as a spherical magnet, and on an average three cubic feet of earth holds as much magnetism as a steel rod weighing one pound." The whole body of the earth is charged with currents of electricity, and as every body so charged must have an electric atmosphere extending far outside of it, our earth's electric envelope must reach far out into space. It is well known that the higher we go into the atmosphere the lighter—more rarified—it is, while the electric tension continually increases. This is the universal testimony, and evidences are strong that a dense body of electricity exists at an elevation of 10 miles.

Charge pith balls with electricity and they will recede from each other, but if the electricity be taken from the pith balls so that they have less than their natural quantity—electricians call this charging them with negative electricity—the balls will converge or fall together. This indicates that the electric atmosphere of the pith balls pushes them apart, while the lack of these atmospheres permits the elements surrounding them to drive them together. Objects that will float on water and are capable of being charged with electricity will float away from each other when charged electrically, but when their electricity is reduced below their natural quantity they float together. These objects will not permanently hold electricity, and if the electricity in them be reduced without causing too great a deficiency they will float toward each other, their momentum carrying them into each other's electrospheres, when they will recede from each other and thus oscillate or perturbate.

The perturbation of the planets is strong evidence on this point. When Mercury is at its farthest point from the sun and Venus is at superior conjunction with it—Mercury being between Venus and the sun—both Mercury and Venus are thrown far out of their orbits, Mercury going nearer to and Venus farther from the sun, they repelling from each other, causing what the astronomers call perturbations. In moving around the earth the moon recedes from the earth when it passes over the continents of the latter and comes nearer the earth when crossing the oceans. There is much greater magnetic influences over the continents than over the oceans. The moon's envelope sinks into the oceans, depressing them, following which, as the waters become level again, the flood tide comes in. These tides are caused by a push from the earth's magnetic envelope.

I cannot fully discuss the push of gravity in this letter, but readers will see some foundation for argument. Both the elements that surround the sun and those of outer space repel condensed matter as water does the cork, and therefore our earth establishes its orbit between, where there is the least resistence, as an egg sinks through oil to the surface of the salt water and a rock to the surface of quicksilver.

W. T. FOSTER.

THEY BOOMED HIS SHOW.

A Gayety Company Playing in Great Luck.

The Naughty Advertisements Roused the Females,

And They Attacked the Bill-Boards With the Result of Filling the Opera House to Overflowing.

Hiawatha, Kas., Oct. 24.—This is a land of cranks and crusades, and Brown county is right in the center of the reform community.

When Hiawatha and the surrounding county is not engaged in a war on whisky or fighting politicians of the Ingalls stripe or rolling up a big vote for friends of Peffer and Simpson, there is always some other affair on hand that keeps the reformers busy.

Just at present the town is in a ferment over a crusade started by the leading church people of the town against the gaiety girls of a coming opera, an aggregation of buxom females, short skirts and wicked city ways, booked for a series of performances here.

When the advance agent came along last week and secured dates at the opera house there were murmurings of disapproval from certain people. The editors of the Democrat and World secured advertising cards at high rates and inserted editorial notices and local paragraphs calling attention to the aggregation of beauty, grace and perfection usually claimed for the members of a burlesque show.

This was bad enough. The good people of the town murmured against this invasion. But it was then the wicked billposter came along and placarded the town that the murmur became a roar.

Such wicked, shameless pictures never before were paraded to bring a blush to Hiawatha's fair fame.

A naughty girl with one toe pointed at the midday sun, clad in a dark skirt, to be sure, but the symmetry of limb and the poetry of motion were suggested in the attitude, stared the modest maiden and the middle-aged matron boldly in the face as they went to the postoffice.

A creature in pink tights was the admiration of so many male members of the community that business was partially suspended on the main street of the city for several hours.

Then it was that the women of the town began to consider the affair seriously. There was an informal gathering of crusaders against wicked show bills at the residence of one of the leading society ladies of the town.

All were church members, and after prayerful consideration of the matter it was determined to prevent the performance at any cost.

The youth and the middle-aged and the elderly members of the male populace, it was argued, must be saved from contamination. The few male confidants of the crusaders counseled legal measures, urging the women to appeal to the mayor and police to prevent the performance.

The plan was not favorably looked upon at first, but finally it was decided to make this slight concession to orderly methods, and a committee was appointed to influence the city officials.

The committee went to the court house, saw the officials and came away without getting any concessions. The agent had paid his license, the city was billed, the performance advertised, and any arbitrary action on the part of the officials meant a lawsuit against the city and more trouble than a little.

Besides it is suspected that the officials were rather anxious to see the show, as it is the custom of most advance agents to make themselves good neighbors by presenting the city fathers with complimentary tickets.

Then the blood of the crusaders began to boil. When the committee reported the stubborn ways of the city officers an elderly woman advised a personal attack on the members of the Gaiety company, another counseled moderation, suggesting that the gaiety girls be appealed to refuse to appear on the boards.

While this matter was being discussed another woman suggested that, even if the performances could not be prevented, at least those degrading posters and lithographs could be destroyed and public disapproval of the show so loudly expressed that self-respecting men would not dare enter the opera house.

This sentiment was loudly applauded, and, while a committee was drawing up resolutions warning every man who attended the performances that he would be declared a social outcast, another group resolved themselves into a committee to devise ways and means to destroy the obnoxious pictures. A group of women armed with rakes, pitchforks and hatchets started out on their mission of destruction. While the band tooted a welcome at the opera house entrance half a dozen richly clad women, armed with weapons and a fierce determination, approached the bill boards and began their self-imposed task.

The skirt dancer's shapely foot was obliberated and her skirt lowered to the ground. The creature in pink tights was torn to shreds, and the dainty girl disguised as a dude was robbed of everything save her plug hat.

Other women entered the stores and shops on the business streets, and without ceremony tore from their fastenings the pretty lithographs that adorned the show windows and trampled them under foot.

A mob, yelling and chaffing, followed the women, who soiled their dresses and lost their tempers before the work was ended.

Scores of persons who had not given a thought to the performance were prompted to investigate the wickedness of the gaiety show, and a large audience was the result.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy, as "Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. ENGLEHARDT APPEALS

And Tries to Close Engineer Bodette's Lips

On the Central Avenue Stone Road Deal.

Evidence That Bodette Has Been Called Off the Work—Will Report After Election.

The Central avenue stone road deal, like Banquo's ghost, will not down, and its shadowy form sleeps and walks and rides with Englehardt "east or west where'er he turns."

The Bee's notice yesterday anent Engineer Bodette's antics in the matter, has stirred up the animals, and bright and early Englehardt was down at Bodette's office this morning with the view of sealing Bodette's lips.

A Bee was entering Mr. Bodette's office just as Englehardt made his exit. There was a broad smile on "Public-be-damned's" face, as if to say the Bee's mission to Mr. Bodette would be fruitless.

His lips were sealed.

"When will you make your report?" he was asked.

"I don't know."

"Have the commissioners asked for it?"

"You mustn't ask me any questions, for I won't answer them."

The fact of the matter is Bodette has been called off the work, which he had about completed for the season. To save Englehardt's scalp it will be necessary to cover it up until after election.

If the engineer's report was published now the taxpayers of this county would be so incensed that they would bury the entire county republican ticket out of sight.

The commissioners have the reports of all the sections but one, and that one could be completed in 36 hours if they would permit Bodette to go ahead.

Auditor Charley Jones, in the absence of any of the commissioners, was asked this morning by a Bee if the reports were ready for publication. He said:

"I don't think the commissioners have got the full reports."

"But cannot the public have the reports of the sections already measured and reported?"

"I don't know that the commissioners have such reports."

"Do you know why Bodette was not allowed to continue the work?"

"I hadn't heard that he was prevented. If he has been it was undoubtedly on account of the rain, or perhaps he has secured enough measurements to strike an average."

If Mr. Jones' latter idea is correct, it would not take Mr. Bodette two hours to make a full report.

Englehardt is afraid to have the full report made public.

DENIES THE STATEMENT.

Dublin, Oct. 24.—Archbishop Walsh states that the remarks imputed to him at the time of Parnell's death, in which he was said to have severely condemned the dead man and to have said that charity had no place at his grave, were never uttered by him. He is inclined to sue the papers which published the statement.

MAY ASSASSINATE LEO.

The Western Watchman Sees Trouble Ahead.

The Pope May Yet Be Driven Out of Rome.

The Attack on the French Pilgrims, While Now in the Past, Is a Source of Great Alarm at the Vatican.

St. Louis, Oct. 24.—The Rev. D. S. Phelan, editor of the Western Watchman, who keeps up a correspondence with Rome that places him in possession of facts that might be considered almost official, was questioned yesterday as to his views on recent rumors concerning the state of affairs now existing there and the talk that the pope might leave.

"A similar agitation," he said "was at whiteheat when I was in Rome two years ago. It was all arranged for the pope to leave for some haven of refuge. At the last moment, however, the pope abandoned the scheme.

"But the circumstances which led to a discussion of abandonment two years ago have become more imperative with time. There is no telling at what instant the mob may storm the vatican, assassinate the pope and desecrate the papacy's possessions.

"The attacks which were made upon the French pilgrims is only a slight eruption of this ill-subdued ferment, and it is to avoid that which prompts the pope to consider flight."

SQUIRE ON TOP.

He Captures Foraker and Receives a Promise.

He Will Have the Railroad Commissionership If McKinley Is Elected —Old Friends Ignored.

Squire is on top and don't forget it.

The president of the Ohio republican league captured the little man yesterday morning and toted him all over town in his carriage.

While Squire was exhibiting the ex-governor, Constable Armstead was chasing Squire with a view of having him appear at the coroner's inquest over the remains of the defunct Toledo republican club, in the Meinert suit for the settlement of the Lincoln banquet.

At any rate Judge Pike, who was taking testimony in the case before a notary public was anxious to have Squire present, but Squire was too busy looking after his own affairs.

The special and particular affair he has at present in view is the securing of the railroad commissionership in the event of McKinley's election.

Foraker, it seems, is the go between, and through him McKinley has conveyed a promise of the plum to Squire.

There are no flies on Squire and don't you fail to remember it.

The railroad men of the state have petitioned Major McKinley not to give Squire the office, and McKinley has replied to the effect that he has made Squire no such promise.

That is true, probably, but McKinley will not deny that he instructed Foraker to tell Squire he would have the office should he (McKinley) be elected.

This is a difference without much of a distinction.

The painful feature of the confab and carriage ride yesterday and one that has caused a great deal of feeling, is that Foraker absolutely ignored his old friends, Clarence Brown and others.

Squire is on top, and he can have what he asks if McKinley is elected.

STUART IS RATTLED.

He Appeals Piteously for Assistance.

The republican county ticket is not going to pieces; it has gone.

Stuart is completely demoralized, and the balance of the candidates are whistling bravely to keep their courage up.

Hunter seems to be about the only one who feels anything like safe, and he, too, is becoming afraid of Mandler.

Stuart's personal appeals to friends to come to his assistance are pathetic and pitiable.

He is doing the baby act. "It will require another term to square me," he says. "We have lived very economically and have only one horse and I can't afford to be beaten."

He will be beaten just the same, and beaten badly. The republicans are on the run now, and presently it will be a stampede from which they cannot rally.

FIVE SPEECHES IN ONE DAY.

Wonderful Campaign Made by Campbell.

No Other Candidate for Governor Has Done the Work that Our Jimmie Is Doing This Fall.

Columbus, Oct. 24.—The superb campaign of Gov. Campbell has attracted such admiration and aroused such enthusiasm in all parts of the state that the executive committee is overwhelmed with requests to arrange meetings to be addressed by him in various sections. It is impossible for the governor, in the short time intervening between now and election day, to comply with the many requests for him to speak, but he will cover considerable territory in the remaining days of the campaign.

Next Tuesday, Oct. 27, he will make five speeches, the committee having completed arrangements for a special train by which he will be enabled to fill the engagements for the day.

At 10 o'clock of that day he will speak at Corning, 12 o'clock at Gloucester, 2 o'clock at Nelsonville, 4 o'clock at Straitsville, and 7 o'clock at Shawnee.

STILL AT WAR.

The Fight for Conductors on the Dorr Street Line.

The fight on the Dorr street line of the Consolidated continues unabated and new points come up every day. The petition asking that the conductors be returned to the line was signed by about 500 citizens along Dorr street and vicinity. The people still refuse to put their fares in the box, and now some of them even refuse to pay the driver when he asks them for it, as there is a sign posted in every car stating that the driver is not allowed to receive fares under any circumstances. In this way many people have been able to ride free.

The cars are unable to make any time, as where a driver collects fares he is obliged to stop, fasten his horses and go back in the car. The horse cars are slow enough at best, and all this takes considerable time.

The union has decided that the company shall not hire any new men until these conductors are taken back.

FARMERS ARE IN LINE.

A Grand Turnout in Noble County To-Day.

Over Three Hundred Farm Wagons in the Procession.

Twelve Thousand People Greet Governor Campbell at Caldwell—Enthusiasm All Along the Line.

Caldwell, O., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Gov. Campbell's train was two hours late in leaving Zanesville this morning. This caused him to miss the connections for Caldwell, but the democrats of Cambridge were equal to the emergency.

When the train reached the latter place there was a special train waiting, and a thousand enthusiastic democrats ready to escort him to this town.

The locomotive was literally covered with flags and pictures of the governor.

At Byesville, Point Pleasant and other stations along the route news of the governor's coming preceded him, and impromptu stands had been erected at the depots.

At each place the train was stopped and the governor got off and made ten-minute speeches.

At Byesville there were fully 1,200 miners and farmers.

Point Pleasant turned out almost 1,000 and the people all wondered where they came from.

But the climax was reached when the train reached this town. Never before was there such a crowd at a political meeting in Noble county.

The farmers came in wagons, on horse back, and many walked miles to get a glimpse of the governor.

There were 15 bands in the procession and over 350 farm wagons.

Delegations from every township were present, and it is estimated that over 1,200 horsemen were in the procession.

As soon as dinner was over the governor repaired to the speakers' stand, and he is now addressing an audience of 12,000 people.

As soon as the meeting is over the governor will take the train for Marietta, where he speaks to-night.

COLUMBUS GROVE ROBBER.

Two Men Identified as the Person Wanted.

Ottawa People Think the Chance of Convicting Either Suspect Has Gone Glimmering.

Ottawa, O., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Frank Van Loon is now in jail charged with being the Columbus Grove bank robber. Crawford, the hardware man, has identified him as the man who purchased the revolver, and Cashier Maple is now not so sure about Roberts being the man. It will be remembered that Crawford also positively identified Roberts as the robber. The growing opinion here, since both persons have been so positively identified as the one man who did the shooting, is that the parties concerned were so scared that they could not identify themselves. The probable outcome, since Van Loon's arrest, is that neither man can be convicted of the crime.

ALUMINUM FACTORY.

Fostoria, Oct. 24.—(Special)—Fostoria will probably have an aluminum plant. Mr. Wanner, who has been making experiments at Bucyrus to produce it cheaply, having failed there because of lack of fuel, has been in conference with Secretary Foster this week, and has decided to put in an experimental plant here.

ROBBED THE SAFE.

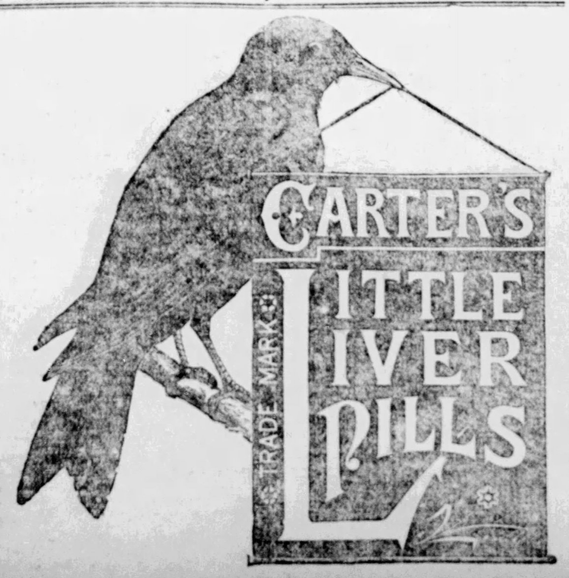
Holyoke, Mass., Oct. 24.—Early yesterday morning the safe in the Connecticut River railroad station at Smith's Ferry, was blown up with dynamite and robbed of $80 in money and $40 in postage stamps. There is no clue to the thieves.

QUEEN VICTORIA DYING.

Such is the Report from London To-Day.

It Comes In a Roundabout Way, However, and Cannot Be Confirmed.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 24.—A message received here at noon from New York says that London advices just received state that Queen Victoria is dying, and is not expected to live through the night.



SOME SPICY CURRENT TOPICS

Of Local and Neighborhood Interest.

Notes and Comments on Incidents Occurring Daily—Prepared for Readers Who are Hustled for Time.

TO BE SOLD.

A precipe was filed in common pleas court to-day, applying for an order of sale of the Chamber of Commerce building on Summit street. The property will be sold within a week or two.

TRYING TO STRAIGHTEN MATTERS.

The street railway conference committee of the council will meet this afternoon in the city clerk's office and make its first attempt to unravel some of the difficulties existing between the two rival street railway companies.

PENOKEE SHOOTING CASE.

The case against Mate Getterman, of the schooner Penokee, was dus in police court again this morning, but as the defendant was not on hand it was continued until next Thursday. Getterman is charged with shooting a sailor named John Nicoll.

EX-PRISONERS OF WAR.

The Toledo Association Union ex-Prisoners of war will hold a special meeting at headquarters to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The principal business of the meeting will be to make arrangements for the entertainment which the association is soon to give.

SHOULDER DISLOCATED.

Al White and Henry Gilroy engaged in an altercation last evening in front of Turner's saloon on the Market space. It was all about a woman, and Gilroy knocked White down. As he fell his shoulder struck on the curb, and was dislocated. Both men were arrested for disturbance and White is under the doctor's care. The case will come up in court next Wednesday.

DANCED AT THE ASYLUM.

That jolly crowd of society young people, known as the "Picnic Horn," attended the weekly dance at the asylum last night and spent a most enjoyable evening There were 17 ladies and gentlemen in the party and a special street car was chartered for their comfort, and much of the entertainment was in the ride out and back.

SUIT FOR $5,000 DAMAGE.

Suit was filed in common pleas court to-day by Barney Wetzel against the Toledo Electric Street railway company to recover $5,000 damages for personal injury. The plaintiff alleges that a motor car run into a wagon which he was driving along Erie street, throwing him to the ground and doing him great bodily injury.

CANDIDATE SEITZ TO SPEAK.

John Seitz of Tiffin, candidate for governor on the people's party ticket, is billed to speak on the issues of the present campaign at Walbridge hall on Monday evening next. Mr. Seitz has quite recovered from his temporary illness and the people's party advocates of Lucas county anticipate a forceful and vigorous presentation of their cause from their leading candidate. Mr. Seitz should be greeted with a full house.

RIVER PIRATES AT WORK.

It has just leaked out that a number of yachts belonging to the Ohio Yacht club, anchored off the Cherry street bridge, were ransacked and plundered last Monday night. Doors were pried off the hinges, lockers broken open and contents scattered topsy turvy all over the boats. It seems that the rogues were not after plunder, as the only articles missed are whiskey and cigars, the equipment of the boats. Many pieces of much value were left. It was evidently the work of local talent, who were afraid to take any of the furnishings for fear of identification and detection.

A CONSTABLE ON THE HUNT.

Constable Armstead is looking for Mr. W. I. Squire, President of the Ohio Republican League, who is wanted to give testimony before a notary public in the case of Meinert against the Toledo Republican Club for payment for the banquet held on Lincoln day. Judge Pike, Meinert's attorney, insists that the Fourth ward statesman shall appear, and the necessary papers have been issued. Mr. Squire was at the Republican meeting in the Fourth last night, and was accessible to the boys for a few hours. Armstead evidently is not breaking his neck to find the big chief of the club.

A MYSTERY.

Detective Duffy this morning found a suit of clothes, including coat, vest, pants, hat, one shoe, and underclothes, on the bank of Swan creek, under the dock at the foot of Washington street. In the pockets were 15 cents and a letter addressed to John Lackie Potts, Oscoda county, Mich. This man is a railroad engineer who came to this city on September 5 and spent one night at the Helping Hand mission. He cannot be found and it is feared that he has committed suicide, or was drowned while bathing in the creek. The clothes had the appearance of having been under the dock for some time. The case is being thoroughly investigated by the police.

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?

This morning's Columbus Journal has the following paragraph which will awaken some interest in Toledo:

The Lozier & Yost Bicycle Manufacturing company, of Toledo, have written Mayor Karb a letter that may be of interest to citizens. The letter states the company is desirous of increasing their capacity. They are anxious the citizens of Columbus take stock. The letter has been turned over to the board of trade, and an effort may be made to have the works located here, in which case stock would be subscribed, otherwise it is not likely Columbus capitalists would invest. The company states in the letter the books and business of the company will bear the closest scrutiny.

RECEPTION LAST NIGHT.

The people of North Toledo were out in force last evening at Albany Street M. E. church, for the purpose of welcoming the new pastor, Rev. J. C. Sinclair, and his family, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. James Kewley, superintendent of the Sunday school, presided, and made a happy welcome address, in which he depicted the many good points of Toledo and the charges, with the prospects. Mr. Sinclair responded, thanking the congregation for its cordial welcome. He spoke of the work in hand and asked for the aid of the people to spread the gospel. He was followed by Rev. P. P. Pope, Capt. Ed Williams and others. After the talks, the ladies served refreshments, and an hour or two was next spent in social conversation. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair held a levee, and were introduced to all in attendance. The Albany Street society promises to be active, and has a field for usefulness not excelled by any in the city. Mr. Sinclair already gives evidence of being attached to his duties, and his services will no doubt be ably seconded by the membership.

BIDS TO BE OPENED.

On Monday at noon bids will be opened at the city clerk's office for the following new sewers and the Superior street market shed:

Sewer No. 374 in Peck street from Lagrange street to the alley 100 feet southwest of Mulberry street.

Colfax street from sewer in Lincoln avenue to a point 20 feet east of west line Shaw's Monroe street addition.

Sewer No. 393, in Daniels street from sewer in Maumee avenue to west line of Dix street.

Sewer No. 394 in Hewey street from sewer No. 291 to a point 80 feet south of Bancroft street.

Sewer No. 395 in Indiana avenue from sewer in Junction avenue to east line Woodland addition.

Sewer No. 396 in rear of lots 124 to 129, Stickney's addition, from the sewer in Magnolia street to a point 40 feet southwest of southwest line lot 123, Stickney's addition.

Superior street market shed, between Monroe and Washington streets.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. H. C. Cotter has returned from a visit in St. Louis.

Dr. E. D. Scheble leaves to-day for a visit to New York.

Mrs. Jethro Mitchell entertained a party of friends at luncheon yesterday.

Mrs. Josephine Scott, of Perrysburg, was the guest of Mrs. R. L. Segur on Thursday.

Mrs. L. Case, of Railroad avenue, is recovering from a severe illness, at the Protestant hospital.

F. W. Thomas has returned from a ten days' trip to New York, Washington and other points in the east.

Bishop Atwill left last evening for New York, and will return for a brief visit to Toledo about the last of the month.

Mrs. Dr. Jaeger and Mrs. A. P. Stevens expect to entertain Mrs. T. V. Powderly while the K. of L. convention is in session in this city.

Miss Janet Lewis, of New York, the well-known artist in photo-crayon portraiture, will prolong her visit with her parents in this city several weeks. She is executing some orders in her specialty of children's portraits.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT.

The Judges Hearing the Appeals for Injunction in Street Railway Matters.

The circuit court is in session in chambers to-day, hearing the two motions to dissolve the injunctions in the case of Dennis Coghlin against the Consolidated Electric Street Railway company, and John Mulhenny against the Consolidated.

The first case restrained the Consolidated from erecting a trolly wire in Summit street, and the other a trolley wire in Monroe street.

Judge Lemmon yesterday morning dissolved both injunctions, and the plaintiff promptly appealed both cases. A decision will be handed down as soon as the cases are submitted.

GOSSIP FROM FINDLAY.

A Saloon Keeper Must Pay for the Damage He Does.

Railroad Notes—Times for Holding Court—Preparations for a Big Democratic Meeting.

Findlay, O., Oct. 23.—(Special)—Anna M. Irvin yesterday began suit in common pleas court for damages of $2,500 against Jacob Franks, whom she claims sold intoxicating liquors to her husband after she notified him not to do so causing him to neglect his business and failing to provide for his family and ruining his health. For all these causes she wants damages to the above amount.

Change of Agents.

Mr. J. M. Scott, agent of the C., H. and D. in this city, has been officially notified that after the first of the month he will be transferred to Lima to be the freight agent there. The agent of the above line at Wapakoneta takes charge of the Findlay agency.

Times for Holding Court.

The common pleas judges of the Tenth judicial district have fixed the times for holding court in the various counties for the coming year as follows: In Crawford county, January 4, April 5 and September 12; in Hancock county, February 1, May 9 and October 3; in Hardin county, January 4, April 11 and September 5; in Logan county, February 25, May 9 and October 10; in Seneca county, February 12, May 23 and October 17; in Marion county, February 22, May 16 and October 17; in Union county, January 11, April 4 and September 12; in Wood county, January 4, April 5 and September 5; in Wyandot county, January 11, May 23 and October 10.

The Brown Bill Suit.

The suit of the city of Findlay compelling the auditor to place on the tax duplicate lands inside the city limits detached by the Brown bill is being tried in the circuit court. The case will be carried to supreme court, however, whatever the result is in the lower court. Great interest is taken in the result.

Sued the City.

Alvin S. Thomas has commenced an action against the city for $200 damage to him and his horse and buggy on North Main street by being run into by the chemical engine driver. The particulars of the accident were given in the Bee the time it occurred.

Democratic Meeting.

The democracy of this city and vicinity will be addressed this evening at the wigwam by ex-Gov. James B. McCreary, of Kentucky, and Hon. J. H. Outhwaite, of Columbus. The indications are for a large crowd and a good meeting.

THE NEW PIPE LINE.

Work is Progressing Rapidly in Maumee.

Maumee, Oct. 24.—The Northwestern Natural Gas company is soliciting patrons here on streets not now piped by the company.

The pipe for their new line from Woodville for the supply of this city, Perrysburg and the new asylum for insane, and the Children's home, is being laid very rapidly.

The trench is already nearly completed between Miami and the asylum, and the pipe is o nthe ground.

BROKE JAIL.

Prisoners Saw Off the Bars and Escape at Paulding.

Paulding, O., Oct. 24.—(Special)—Four prisoners escaped from the jail here last night by sawing off three sets of bars in the window.

One of the prisoners, Dr. Goodwin, was in for bigamy, the other for biting off the ear of a man in a fight, and two for burglary.

Sheriff Saylor has gone in pursuit, and hopes to recapture them. They were evidently assisted by outsiders. There were seven other prisoners in the jail, who might have escaped had they so desired.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

The school reports for 1890 have arrived and are ready for distribution at the county auditor's office.

The case of Lee against Kellogg on trial in Judge Pugsley's court, was adjourned to Tuesday, October 27.

John S. Eck & Co. sued Moses Dubbs and Stephen Laskey in common pleas court to-day, to recover $257.59 on a note.

George H. Jay sued Simon S. Kiener, in common pleas court to-day to recover $316.84 on a note.

The Alsatian society of this city will run an excursion to Columbus over the T. & O. C. to-morrow.

The board of elections was in session this morning, approved the proof of the ballot, and ordered the printing of the same to be proceeded with.

Wm. F. Thompson was to-day appointed by Judge Pugsley to succeed J. M. Wolcott as member of the soldiers' relief commission.

Judgment was rendered for the defendant in the case of Catharine Gilday against the L. S. & M. S. Railway company by Judge Pugsley in common pleas court to-day.

The preliminary hearing of Quinlan and McGlynn, charged with robbing Charles Halsey in Kelley's saloon, is being heard in police court this afternoon. The defendants are being represented by Attorney Frank Wright.

King Ford, colored, was convicted under the second count of the indictment in criminal court to-day. The second count charged him with criminally assaulting Callie Sanders, a young girl, with her consent. The verdict found that the child was over 12 years of age. Had the jury found the girl to be under 12 years he would have meant the penitentiary for life.

OH, HOW BEAUTIFUL! — Is the expression of all who inspect Stolberg & Parks' new drapery department. New goods coming in all the time.

ONLY $15 — People wonder how we can sell such nice bedroom suits so cheap. We answer, as an advertisement. STOLBERG & PARKS.

THE LADIES CAN'T VOTE — At the state election, but we believe they all agree that for good styles and proper prices in furniture and draperies Stolberg & Parks can't be beat.

DIED.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

London wheat market opening firm. Corn nothing offering. Liverpool wheat firm and 1-2d higher. Supply poor. Corn firm.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,134,133 bu, compared with 735,081 bu on the same day last year.

The "interstate commerce commission" have decided that a rail freight of 50c to 56c per 100 lbs from 1,576 miles to Minneapolis is a fair price. That looks fair. It is twice the distance from Chicago to New York and 25c per 100 lbs is the rate.

The English, Scottish and Irish crops of wheat and potatoes promise to turn out better, and sounder yield than was expected a few weeks since, but much of the wheat needs to be dried out, before it is fit for market.

Demand for Cars.

At Chicago on Thursday began an active demand for cars to go west for wheat.

Business failures in the United States and Canada for the week were 249, against 250 the previous week, and 225 for the corresponding week in 1890.

Beerbohm, October 9 says: There is certainly more confidence in the wheat trade just now, especially on the part of English buyers, who during the past week have operated rather freely, after having for quite a prolonged period held aloof. The fear of an export duty being imposed in Russia, the probability that shipments from the exporting countries will now for some time to come be decreasing, and the greater need than in ordinary years for an immediate supply of dry foreign wheat to make up for the large percentage of defective conditioned home grown wheat this season—these influences have all combined to cause more freedom in buying.

Beerbohm, Oct. 9th says: The grain trade of Russia is at present one of mystery and imagination. Scarcely a day passes without some rumor of threatened prospects, possibilities of export, or some other vexatious restrictions. At the same time the weekly shipments continue as if no stringent measures were in force, the output of wheat for the week ending September 26 being 2,919,000 bus., making since the middle of August a total of 14,847,940 bus. as compared with 13,235,640 bus. in the same period 1890, and 9,814,424 bus. in 1889, so that the famine year has seen larger shipments than usual. The conditions of the winter sown wheat and rye are, generally speaking, fairly promising, but some districts require rain to give the seed a good start.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 395,052 bu in excess of the corresponding Saturday in 1890.

The receipts of grain in the week at eight principal western points are, wheat 7,861,000 bu. Corn, 1,091,000 bu. Oats 1,981,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1890 wheat 4,001,000 bu. Corn 2,144,000 bu. Oats 1,858,000 bu.

The receipts of grain at the same points, viz: Toledo, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Duluth and Peoria, since July 1 to date have been, wheat 99,579,000 bu, corn 35,679,000 bu. In the corresponding period in 1890 the receipts of wheat were 38,394,000 bu, corn 39,114,000 bu, oats 34,268,000 bu.

The export clearances yesterday from four Atlantic ports were 351,012 bushels of wheat and flour to an aggregate of 500,000 bushels.

The exports of grain this week from the same ports are: Wheat 1,857,000 bu, corn 763,000 bu, oats 181,000 bu. Previous week: Wheat 1,897,000 bu, corn 645,000 bu, oats 239,000 bu. Bradstreets reports the exports of wheat from both coasts for the week at 3,783,178 bu, previous week 4, 093,447 bu.

In New York October and November wheat closed 1-8c up; October corn 1 1-2c and November 1-8c up; October oats 1-8c up. In Chicago December wheat closed 1-4c lower; October and November corn about unchanged.

In Toledo we have had a very quiet day in the trading in wheat futures. It has been an unsettled and hesitating market, with some anticipations of better prices next week. New York telegraphs that very large sales have been made there cash and future for export. Our prices have ruled a shade higher than yesterday's closing, but towards the close the market was weak and lost the little advance and closed a shade lower. On the call December sold at 97 7-8 to 97 3-4c. After the call December sold at 99 3-4c and closed at 1-4c, a loss of 1-4c; May sold at $1 05 3-4 and closed at 1-4c steady.

Cash wheat was in sharp demand, advancing 1-2c, but closing at yesterday's price. No. 2 soft at 98c, closing at 97 1-2c. No. 3 soft at 95c. No. 4 soft at 88 1-2c. Rejected No. 1 at 87@85c. No. 2 at 78c. White at 72c. No. 2 hard, 95c. No. 3 hard, 88c. No. 2 white at 95c.

Firmness and steadiness have characterized American markets to-day. English and continental markets have been quoted higher all day, without apparent effect on this side in advancing prices. Opening prices east and west were 1-4c to 1-2c better, but even that was not maintained.

Corn has been firm, and prices generally have ruled about steady, except October in New York, which has been dearer all day.

Corn—No. 2, 57 1-2c; No. 2 yellow, at 58 1-2c. Oats—No. 2 winter at 32 1-2c; No. 3 white at 31c; rejected at 30c. Rye—1-2c up; No. 2 at 89c; No. 3 at 85 1-2c; rejected at 78 1-2c.

Clover seed—A shade better. Prime for cash at $4.55; October, $4.55; December, at $4.60; November at $4.32 1-2@4.35.

Liverpool Quotations.

We speak for all western dealers when we express our gratitude to the Liverpool "Corn Trade News" for its timely and fair comments on our late appeals for more intelligible rendering of values in that market.

India and Russia Shipments.

Russia, in some respects, is a dark continent, where information is scarce, and where, frequently, what is called such, is utterly unreliable.

This country has supposed at one time that Russia would export us wheat on this crop. Her exports in the week ending September 26 equalled 2,919,000 bus. From August 15 to Sept. 26, 14,848,000 bus., against 13,236,000 in 1890 for the same period. Reuter's European Telegraph says Russia will export 112,000,000 bus. in the crop year from August 1, but no one believed it. We have heretofore given India's exports from April 1 to October 17 at 36,200,000 bus. compared with 19,980,000 bus. in 1890 for same period. These are important facts in this year of European famine.

The receipts of wheat this week at eight principal western points exceed any week this season except the week ending September 19, when the receipts were 7,992,000 bus., an excess of 131,000 bus.

Markets by Telegraph.

London, Oct. 24—1 p. m.—Wheat cargoes off coast at opening firm; maize, nothing offering. Wheat cargoes on passage and for shipment, firmer; maize, firmer. Weather foggy.

Liverpool, Oct. 24.—1 p. m.—Wheat market firm, supply poor, holders offer sparingly. American mixed corn firm. No. 2 red winter wheat (New York Standard) 8s 3 1-2@8s 4 1-2d; Cala. No. 1 wheat 8s 9 1-2d. Wheat off coast demand poor; corn demand fair.

New York, Oct. 24.—Cotton steady; middling uplands, 8 7-16. Futures quiet; October, $8.16; November, $8.24; December, $8.39. Flour weak, and in some instances sales were made at a concession; city mill extra, $5.25@5.50 for West Indies; Minnesota extra, $3.35@5.00; fine, $3.00@3.65; superfine, $3.30@4.00. Wheat opened strong and continued strong throughout the morning. Prices at noon were up 5-8c; No. 2 red winter cash, $1.04 3-4; October, $1.03 3-8; November, $1.04 1-8; December, $1.05 3-4; January, $1.07 3-8. Corn opened strong at 1-4c advance, and at noon was steady; No. 2 mixed cash, 67 1-4c; October, 66 1-2c; November, 63 1-8c; December, 56 1-4c. Oats—Quiet but steady; No. 2 mixed cash, 37 1-2@38c; October and November, 37c; December, 37c. Rye and barley nominal. Molasses, quiet but steady; New Orleans, common to fair, 18@24c. Sugar, refined unsettled and moderately active; cutloaf and crushed, 5 1-8c; powdered, 4 1-2c; granulated, 4 1-4@4 3-8c. Coffee steady; fair rio cargoes, 15 1-2c. Rice nominal. Pork dull and nominal; new mess, $11.00. Lard quiet; December, $6.66; January, $6.76. Butter barely steady, with slow trade; western extra, 32@32 1-2c. Cheese dull and rather easier. Eggs dull but firm; western fresh, 23 1-2@24c. Turpentine dull at 36 3-4@37 1-2c. Rosin quiet but steady; strained to good, $1.32 1-2@1.37 1-2. Tallow dull; prime city, 4 3-4c. Petroleum quiet. Freights in good demand and firm; grain to Liverpool, steam, 5 3-4@6d.

New York, Oct. 24.—Money 2 1-2@3 per cent and closing offered at 2 1-2. Exchange steady; posted rates $4.82@4.85; actual rates $4.81 for 60 days and $4.84 for demand.

Governments closed steady; currency 6s $1.11 bid; 4s coup., $1.16 3-4 bid; 4 1-2s coup., $1 bid.

Have you registered? If not, do so to-night. You can't vote unless you register.

The republicans will not elect any of their candidates in Lucas county this year. "The critter's eyes are sot."

A vote for Foster Warren for commissioner will be a vote for better administration of the commissioner's office.

Mr. M. O. Waggoner fires another lot of "Common Sense Questions" at the protectionists to-day. There is lots of common sense and strong truths bluntly put in all of M. O.'s writings.

The republican committee in Lucas county is thoroughly discouraged. Certain defeat stares them in the face, candidates will not respond to calls for money and a state of demoralization has taken possession of the whole camp.

Uncle John Seitz, the candidate for governor on the People's ticket, will speak in Toledo Monday night. Mr. Seitz is not so impetuous as Foraker, but he can tell more truths in five minutes than Foraker can in a month.

Foxy Mr. Griffin tried to pull the wool over the eyes of the rolling mill men at the East Side gas meeting last night, but they all understand him. He is for Griffin all the time and cares for the people only as he can use them. It is time to retire him to his real estate office and keep him there.

It is fair to presume that the natural gas trustees are doing all in their power to supply gas. The trouble is the people have been led by the trustees themselves to expect too much and the day of knowledge is at hand. From now on the question of supply will not be one of sentiment. The field must show for itself.

Hon. W. I. Squire, the acknowledged leader of the republicans of Toledo, is having another peck of trouble about the ancient turtle soup. In the suit for pay for the banquet W. I. is wanted so badly that an officer is after him and he is hiding. Pie, Mr. Squire; stand out boldly at the head of your clubs and proclaim your leadership. Make the boys step aside and go to the front yourself.

The full report of the speech of Mr. McKinley in the Toledo morning paper is hardly antidote for this significant squib clipped from another column of the same issue:

When rioting is feared in the mines near Pittsburg because the places of the white American miners are being filled by Hungarians and negroes, the question arises why that course is pursued, instead of paying reasonable wages for mining?

The people are not in temper to stand any evasion or concealment on the Central avenue stone road investigation. The truth and nothing else is wanted. Engineer Bodette knows all about it, but for some mysterious reason he, like the rest of them, closes like a clam. Why? The people ask why. Mr. Bodette's reputation is at stake and he would better think of himself and the public in this matter. Questionable proceedings are at a discount in Lucas county.

Appraiser Cooper in New York assuming that an English firm sold goods to a New York importer under price, clapped on an extra 14 per cent, to even up things and the case goes up to Washington for readjustment. A law that needs such eternal legal tinkering and pottering, that invites such corruption, duplicity and bribery, that demoralizes the honor of any man who gets within the circle of its influence, that works only mischief and that continually, is not a good law for individual benefit or for the country. It is a stigma upon the country at home and abroad.

Sir Edwin Arnold has arrived in New York and will give a series of lectures in this country. His fame precedes him and his welcome is already assured. Our people of letters open wide their hospitable doors to literary tourists of the old world, but, be it said truthfully, as a rule the compliment is not reciprocated in the same free and willing manner. An English letter writer who has made considerable money entering the homes and sanctums of our authors and public men and writing up interviews with them, explained to an American correspondent that it was quite impossible to get to see the inside of literary sanctums in his country; "the Englishman is so tremendously exclusive." They always come out of their shell however when they hear the clink of the coin which Americans are ready to exchange for the privilege of seeing and listening to them. But Edwin Arnold is too much of a cosmopolitan to have this properly apply to him. He will have princely treatment and get dollars in his pocket and no one will object. He is a worthy man—a poet and a scholar who deserve homage wherever the English language is spoken.

A better candidate for the legislature than Mr. A. C. Bay could scarcely be found. Intelligent and active, he would prove an invaluable member of the lower house. He has been an indefatigable worker in the council Board for nearly two years as representative from the Ninth ward, and nothing but praise is heard of him. Mr. Bay has an extensive acquaintance with the business men of Toledo, his duties as assistant surveyor for the Board of Underwriters bringing him into close connection. He is not the candidate of any clique, and was not nominated for the purpose of gathering any special interest, but on the contrary is a broad-gauge, wide-awake Toledoan, who will look after the city's general welfare. Mr. Bay ought to have a rousing majority.

The defenders of the tariff monstrosity, driven to the last ditch, forced to acknowledge the truth democracy has always promulgated, that the tariff is a tax, have now the audacity to declare that the foreigner pays the tax. Now and then an honest man in the republican party has the courage and common sense not to support the false and absurd statement. For instance, the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard, a republican organ, says:

If a person wants foreign goods he must pay the price, with the duty added. We are not believers in the doctrine that the duty on imported goods is paid by the foreign producers.

The rest of the republican brethren no more believe the doctrine than does the Standard man, but they are more ready liars, and not clear-sighted enough to know the lie will avail them nothing. The tariff is a tax which the buyer of the foreign-made goods pays, as the Standard acknowledges. And, as the Standard says, he "must" pay this added duty as sure as the duty is levied. The unnecessary duties the McKinley law has imposed cannot be evaded. The consumer must pay them until McKinleyism is overthrown. Down with McKinleyism, beginning in Ohio on November 3.

SUFFRAGE IN ILLINOIS.

There is trouble brewing in Chicago. The last legislature of the state of Illinois enacted that women should vote on certain questions pertaining to school government. Opponents to such measure have found a flaw in the law, depending upon the word "male" in the constitution of the state which covers all grounds of franchise. Arguments pro and con as to the intent of the law, and its validity, have been exhaustively applied, and legal opinions given by high authorities. When the registration books were opened, over ten thousand Chicago women flocked to put their names on the list according to the new rights granted them. Seven hundred of them succeeded in registering, and those who were refused will appeal to the courts; and the election commissioners will make trouble for the registrars who received the seven hundred names. Altogether it's a case for the courts where it will have to be settled. Strange when lawyers predominate in nearly every legislative body, that so many enactments must be pronounced upon by legal authority, before the question of their constitutionality can be settled.

"JUDAISM IS SELF SUSTAINING."

This was the declaration of our esteemed fellow citizen, Mr. G. Bloch, in a newspaper card a few days ago, and invites attention. Do facts bear out the assertion? The Bee believes yes. We do not find Judaism in alms-houses or in the places on the road that leads to them. They are exiled from Russia because they "absorb" land and monopolize trade. They go out into the world from exodom, paupers, because their property is taken from them. The Jew is not a pauper, neither is he a thief to keep from becoming one. He is rarely behind penitentiary bars. He is shrewd and safe in trade, even more so than the proverbially sharp "Yankee." He is a born tradesman, and he doesn't spend his surplus in questionable ways. Put the Jew down in this country shorn of his earnings and savings, exiled and forlorn, and remarkably soon he becomes self-sustaining. His wants are not numerous; the most he wants is a chance. A young man of this nationality, a licensed peddler in the city, said to the Bee, "a man who is poor in this country has himself to thank for it, as the opportunity to do something is sure to be offered to everybody sooner or later."

Records of nationalities in alms houses and prisons emphasize the assertion that Judaism is self-sustaining. The declaration is not based upon casual observation or any affirmation of their own. The naturalized Jew is a peaceable, law-abiding citizen. This is a land of free religion; he is not to be proscribed because of his faith.

Surely Toledoans can testify to these simple facts, for some of its most enterprising and respected citizens are Jews and of Jewish descent. And certainly Baron Hirsch, the foremost of them all, is a large-souled philanthropist of whom not only Judaism but all humanity may be proud.

PROTECTION AND WAGE.

There is one point that orators, who proclaim that protection maintains a higher wage rate for labor, always miss, and that is that as a rule the American does more work for his wage than the foreign laborer. The half holiday and the "Fair weeks" that belong to labor in England and Scotland are unknown in this country. Hon. Wm. M. Evarts in his report on the "state of labor in Europe in 1870," said:

The average American workman performs from one and a half to twice as much work in a given time as the average European workman, a d expressed a belief that this point should be considered in the question of labor competition between countries, when comparisons were made.

And Mr. Blaine himself is on record as follows:

Undoubtedly the inequalities in the wages of English and American operatives are more than equalized by the greater efficiency of the latter and their longer hours of labor.

To an unprejudiced student of the question, the fallacy that a protective tax has anything to do with the wage schedule of labor or the betterment of the condition of the impoverished, is perfectly plain. The law of supply and demand makes mechanics' wages high in Utah and Texas and low in V[illegible] and Massachusetts. If the fact of our free form of government, our natural advantages, the inventive genius and enterprise of our people will not account for the trifling difference there is in the labor wage in the new world and the old, candidly considered, then these boasted blessings of freedom are a myth, and all we have and are we owe to a tax on the importers of foreign goods! (according to republican authority.)

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, the London evangelist, and Mrs. Ballington Booth, who probably know more about the condition of the poor in their own country than any other persons living, told their audiences in New York, that all their experiences in the slums of London had not prepared them for the squalor, vice and misery they found among the poor in New York and Boston. So it seems this beautiful law of "protection" fails entirely to reach these poor strugglers in our great cities. And according to the indirect testimony of these unprejudiced workers, the government must be doing less for its poor, than the government of England for its own army of "paupers" that we hear so much about—this side of the water.

What is the explanation of all this? Do the laws for classes against the masses have anything to do with their case? Does it reach down to their condition? Is it a lie and a cheat that America is the poor man's paradise? Does poverty beget vice, and what is responsible for the growth of poverty in our midst to such an alarming extent? Why should the poor of Boston be in worse condition than the poor of great London town? These howlers for "protection" in the name of the strugglers and the laborers of the country would better shut their mouths for a season and open their eyes.

Helen M. Gougar, a prohibitionist orator, who is interested in the price of tin cups (for water drinking purposes), made a journey to Piqua, O., to learn for herself about that tin factory. The most scathing denunciation of the fraud yet heard or read is found in her description of what she saw.

A neat turn was given the debate on gambling in the Ecumenical council, when mention was made of stock speculation, betting on horse races, etc., and a good brother mildly put in about the church fair lotteries. And it was a colored brother who did it.

Italy will let in duly certified hog meats, but the live animal is yet under ban. To tax raw material and liberate the manufactured product is another phase of the protective policy.

The recent earthquake in central California has caused an increase in the flow of gas wells. An earthquake is not an unmitigated calamity.

TWO OF OUR CANDIDATES.

Mr. John Weckerly is a representative mechanic and farmer. He is honest, steadfast to his friends and is in every way qualified to represent the masses regardless of party, in the state legislature. A vote for John Weckerly for representative is a vote in favor of a farmer-mechanic to help make our laws.

It happens in this year of grace that Foster R. Warren is the people's candidate for county commissioner. It matters little that he was nominated by the democrats, we have it straight from the powers that be that he will be elected commissioner next November 3, for the purpose of wiping out the frauds surrounding the work of building some roads and culverts in Lucas county. No contractor will draw pay for a dozen cords of stone, which when laid in a culvert will not show eight cords in the job, on or after the date of swearing into office the next county commissioner. For the name of that new commissioner will be Foster R. Warren, whose name does not stand for "fraud."—Maumee New Era.

We Are All In It.

If the keen, shrewd and commonsense American purchased a suit of clothes, the price of which was $10, and an officer of the government should stop him as he was leaving the store and demand from him $6, he would knock the officer down and call a patrol wagon and bundle him off to a station. But so long as the government official is a thousand miles away and collects his $6 by proxy, the keen, shrewd, commonsense American pays $16 for the clothes and walks out satisfied that he worked a pretty close bargain. In some things the keen, schrewd, common-sense American is the biggest and most successful fool on the face of this green earth.—Chicago Globe.

Suppose and Suppose.

Suppose for an instant that all duty was removed from imported articles, where would a large share of the money come from to run this government? And what would be Ohio's share in the national assessment?—Columbus Journal.

Suppose for an instant that the earth would split in two and houses go sailing into space, what would be the need of Ohio thinking about her share of government expenses?—Steubenville Gazette.

Pearl Button and Tin Plate.

The American pearl-button industry was bound over yesterday by Commissioner Hoyne under $1,000 bonds and the eight Austrian workmen who were imported under contract and struck because their munificent wages of $8 per week were cut are now at liberty to embark in the tin-plate business.—Chicago Mail.

The Ides of November

November, 1890, will come again in November, 1891, and after that in 1892. The democratic party has climbed the High-Tax intrenchments in all the November states, and it is driving the McKinleyites to the brush.—Norwalk Experiment-News.

The End of the March is Near.

Everywhere Governor Campbell is being received with welcome, and is speaking to vast multitudes. His tour through the state is one grand triumphant march which will land him on the gubernatorial chair one week from next Tuesday.—Middletown Signal.

Protection to Labor.

Labor comes in free of duty, at the rate of half a million a year—and labor, you know, is what the protectionists profess to protect and take such a deep interest in. We feel like saying "Rats!" and, upon the whole, we guess we will. Ra-ts!—Democratic Northwest (Napoleon).

Max is Talking.

It is an axiom that no man ever wished to be a woman, but Max O'Rell in his new book declares that if he had to be born again and could make a choice, he would shout at the top of his voice, "Oh, make me an American woman!" Max is talking.—Indianapolis News.

No Chance for Blocks of Five.

The Australian ballot has knocked out and demoralized the Indiana republican bosses. The municipal election held for mayor, etc., in Indianapolis last week recorded an overwhelming democratic victory.—Greenville Democrat.

Success to the C.-G.

The Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, the organ of fraud, forgery and Forakerism, is making the same scandalous fight on Gov. Campbell it did two years ago. It will succeed in electing him as it did then.—Findlay Courier.

The One Thing Needful.

Every democrat ought to blazon the fact on his brain that the only thing that remains now to be done to re-elect Gov. Campbell is to get to the polls and vote 'er straight.—Mansfield Shield and Banner.

The Ballot and the People.

The republican leaders hate the new ballot law. It prevents them from bulldozing and buying votes, and hence it does not suit them at all. But it suits the people.—Lancaster Eagle.

MILL MEN'S MEETING.

Many East Siders Turn Out to Attend It.

The Trouble Between the City Gas Trustees and the Rolling Mill Company Discussed—Committee Appointed.

The hall in Weber's block was well filled at 8 o'clock last evening for a meeting called for 7:30, to discuss the shutting off of gas from the Maumee Rolling mill. The delay in opening the meeting was occasioned by the failure of the street car line to get some of the expected speakers over on schedule time.

While a large proportion of the men present were employes of the rolling mill company, there were also many representative citizens of the Sixth ward, merchants, property owners and others interested in the prosperity of that now flourishing part of the city. There were from 250 to 300 persons in the hall.

George Sheets was made chairman of the meeting, and W. J. Gill secretary, and the speakers came forward one after another as they were called for.

In opening the meeting Mr. Sheets said he was not acquainted with its exact purpose, but knew the employes of the rolling mill were there to protest against too much enforced idleness, for which the lack of natural gas fuel was responsible. It was painfully evident to every one that something was wrong when this favorite plant of the East Side was idle more than half the time. Why it could not be run full time the meeting was called to discuss, and he expected both sides, the rolling mill company and the natural gas trustees would be heard from.

Thomas J. Rowley

Was called for and took the platform. Mr. Rowley is an employe of the rolling mill company and presented their side of the case as follows: The natural gas trustees entered into a contract with the company, a contract stipulating the price at which gas should be furnished the mills, which contract was to cover the period from October 1, 1891, to August, 1892. At the time of making the contract the trustees did not know who was going to take their gas supply, and they were very glad the company wanted it at the price, which was high enough so that for the month of September the company paid the trustees $21,000. Now the gas trustees think they can sell to private consumers all the gas they can supply, and they want to break their contract with the company, and have served notice the mill supply will be cut off on November 1.

This was unjust to the company, but was a great deal harder on the company's employes. These men, some 450 of them, had wanted the city line, had voted for it, had put up with poor chance of work for the season before, but when the contract with the natural gas trustees was made they rejoiced to think they were sure of a good chance to work. Some people think this a small offense the trustees have committed, but if they could see these men gather at the mills and wait around until 10 o'clock and then go home, and could go to their homes with them, and realize with them that they had earned nothing with which to provide for wife and children the next day, the thing would not look so small to them.

The contract was made in good faith on the part of the company. The question be brought before the meeting was, Cannot the city of Toledo be forced to carry out a contract made through its trustees? If not, he believed the mills would shut down. Very likely the plant would be moved elsewhere. There are 20 or 30 towns that want to get it, towns with three and four railways centering in them. Some of them are in the Indiana natural gas belt, and thus nearer Chicago, the principal market of the mills.

If the mill must go, it will be a detriment to the city, especially to the East Side. The men do not want to go. They have their homes here, they like to live here and want to stay here. But now they see themselves deprived of the fuel with which they earn their daily bread, and all in order that the city pipe lines may be run three and four miles out into the suburbs, to boom somebody's real real estate lots.

Manufactories bring men to the city, where they buy their homes and spend their money, and manufacturers, if a discrimination must be made, should be furnished gas in preference to private consumers, because the establishment of the manufactories brings the private consumers here.

The Rolling Mill company had a bona fide contract with the natural gas trustees, and the trustees refuse to fulfil their part of it. The men on the pay-roll of the company suffer in consequence, and they ask this meeting if the city shall not be made to respect its contract?

Thomas Reid.

The next speaker, a plain, straight talker, said he was one of the men who went to the mill and waited till 10 o'clock for gas and then went home with no work done and no money earned. He was here before the mill was started up, and he remembered the stories told on every hand of dull times and saw the long faces of the store keepers. Do the business men of the East Side want those times again? He heard it said that the talk of shutting down the mills was a bluff, but it is not so. In his opinion it will be done. Since the company made the contract with the trustees, he believing in the pipe line, had invested the savings of his life-time here, the most of it in a $1,300 home. Now see his situation, unless the city was honorable enough to live up to the contract its gas trustees had made, as he still believed it was. He had voted for the pipe line, not only to get cheap gas into the homes, but far more so that manufacturers could have it, and other mills and still more of them be established in Toledo. The Rolling Mill company was in a bad fix, but there was danger of a wider ruin. The mill owners can afford to let the mill stand idle, but the workingmen cannot. "I speak for the workingman," said Mr. Reid.

W. H. Tucker

Was the next man called. With his usual bashfulness Mr. Tucker declined to mount the platform, and stood before the meeting on a little box. As he talked it became evident that he was also standing upon the fence. His spectacles gleamed mildly upon his audience, and he was all for peace. There was a good lot of sound sense in his suggestions as well. He agreed with all Sixth ward folks that the mill and its men were the backbone of the East Side, where business was increased by them sevenfold. The East Side must stand by the rolling mill if the gas trustees had signed a contract with the company that had no "ifs" or "ands" in it. But he presumed the contract was like all those made with individuals, a contract with a clause in it allowing the trustees to shut off gas from manufactories if necessary in order to supply private consumers. He was willing to freeze to have the mills supplied, and he favored a petition asking all private consumers to forego the comforts of natural gas and let the company have it. He also favored the appointment of a committee to arbitrate between the company and the trustees, and see if matters could not be tided over until the Van Buren injunction was dissolved, and the trustees could again redden the sky with rolling mill fires.

A Voice in the Rear.

Some one in the back part of the hall now called out: "It is understood C. P. Griffin opposes the company getting the gas unless they pay at the same rates as private consumers. Let us hear from Mr. Griffin."

Mr. Griffin came forward, and being distinctly visible from the floor of the hall did not mount the platform, nor step on Mr. Tucker's box. He said he could not have given the opinion credited to him for he had not before been asked his opinion. Everybody there knew what the trouble was and who was to blame. The city would now have one line for manufacturers and another for private consumers and gas enough for both had not its bonds been discredited two years ago. The same malice still pursued the city line and trustees. One man in Van Buren came near being killed a week ago by the breaking of a lantern just as a well was being brought in, and we can understand what malignant spirit would rather kill men than have the city bring in wells successfully. Mr. Heston had told him at present not one-half of the capacity of the city lines was available on account of connections being made, and the city had several wells not yet connected with the pipes. There will be gas enough pretty soon, for manufacturers and everybody, and then he would be in favor of letting the rolling mill have it at such price as it can afford to pay and run.

To show his interest in manufactories Mr. Griffin then abused the grain trade which he said was "a curse to the city." Grain merchants have no men on their pay rolls, and they damage this city by taking its money away for speculators who pay a high price for it, making it impossible for business men to borrow at reasonable rates. "The time will come," said Mr. Griffin, "when merchants will not put their money in a bank that will not give them the first and best chance."

Getting back to the question before the house he said he believed there would be gas enough to supply manufacturers as soon as the city line connections were made, and he favored Mr. Tucker's peace committee, and would work with it.

A representative of the gas trustees was called for, but as no response came, it was inferred none were present.

The call was made for W. J. Gill, who spoke briefly but to the point. "Billy" is always for the East Side and don't care who knows it. On this question he said that he knew enough of the growth and prosperity of the Sixth ward to know that its voting population had increased two-thirds, with all the material improvements that accompany such increase, since the present rolling mill was built. The idea that the city gas was scarce seemed to him a ridiculous statement. It was only three or four weeks ago that a motion was offered in the council to sell city gas to manufacturers outside of the city of Toledo, a motion championed by Mr. Morris, who said the city had an overabundant supply and should sell to these outside companies to pay off some of its indebtedness. He did not question the statement then, but had the motion tabled because he wanted to see all Toledo supplied first. It took a lively fight to keep the motion from passing, in the face of which the present claim of scarcity of gas was ridiculous to him. He was at the service of the men whom he thought had a right to demand that the contract should be kept.

Will Godfrey, an employe of the company, was called on for a speech, but excused himself as he had come in late. He asked the merchants and business men present to remember that the company's pay-roll was $25,000 a month, almost all of which was spent with them, and it was in their interest that the council and trustees should do all they can to keep the mill going.

A motion carried that the chair appoint a committee to wait upon the gas trustees and the company. On the part of East Side business men Mr. Sheets appointed Joseph Munch and David Harpster; rolling mill employes, Thos. J. Rowley, Thos. Reid, Geo. Compton, Daniel Carter, Richard Harris. By a subsequent motion George Sheets, W. J. Gill and Will Godfrey were added to the committee, and the meeting adjourned subject to call of the committee.

RIPE FOR ANNEXATION.

Canada Would Make a Good Republican State.

A Mild Dose of Whitewash for the Government Employes Who Drew Double Pay.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 24.—Premier Abbott made public last night the report of the committee of the privy council appointed to investigate the irregularities in the civil service.

The report recommends that the 60 department clerks who drew extra pay under assumed names, although reinstated, lose one month's pay.

A. M. Burgess, deputy minister of the interior, who permitted this system to exist, has been reduced one grade.

The report recommends that civil proceedings be taken against three other clerks who are not named.

HER GUNS WORTHLESS.

A Sensation Created in English Naval Circles.

London, Oct. 24.—A 67-ton gun on board the armored vessel Howe, has developed a defect in the inner tube, similar to that recently found in one of the big guns of the ironclad Anson, the flagship of the Channel squadron.

The admiralty is greatly exercised over the repeated discoveries of defects in British guns. The incident also causes intense uneasiness generally, and will go far to destroy all confidence in the worth of the naval armament. The original cost of the gun in question was £15,000.

The Howe is considered one of the most formidable vessels in the British navy. She carries ten guns, is of 10,500 tonnage, and is of 11,500 horse-power. She is commanded by Capt. Henry Boys and is attached to the Channel squadron. An investigation will be promptly ordered.

VIOLATED THE LOTTERY LAW.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 24.—Juan Hart, J. D. Ponder and Thomas O'Keefe, proprietor, editor and business manager of the El Paso Times, have been arrested on ten informations for violation of the anti-lottery law by mailing copies of said paper containing lottery advertisements.

DR. SPOONER DISCHARGED.

Honorably Acquitted of the Charge of Embezzlement.

The charge of embezzlement against Dr. H. K. Spooner, of Republic, Ohio, was dismissed by United States Commissioner Hall yesterday, and the doctor was honorably acquitted. The case has been referred to in the Bee during the preliminary hearing, and as stated in these columns yesterday, the evidence was strongly in favor of the accused.

At the postponed hearing yesterday Dr. Spooner presented his books, vouchers and such documentary evidence as not only entirely exonerated him, but showed him to be a charitable gentleman.

The pension officers of the government seemed to have overstepped somewhat their authority, and Dr. Spooner proposes pushing the matter until it reaches President Harrison.

After hearing the case Commissioner Hall promptly discharged the prisoner.

Talking with a Bee afterwards Dr. Spooner expressed himself warmly against the action of Pension Agent Wills and his townsman Chamberlin. He says it was spite work and simply and an attempt at blackmail.

Beyond Smart Aleck's Power

Will some smart aleck of a republican editor be kind enough to point to a manufacturer who has reduced the price of his products and increased the wages of his employes at one and the same time?—Zanesville Signal.

His Name, Please, Mr. Press.

A prominent citizen of Warren county, Ohio, lately contracted for 300,000 tin cans for sweet corn, to be made entirely of American materials and by American labor, at $1.87 per hundred.—New York Press.

COMMON SENSE QUESTIONS.

To the Editor:—A few pertinent points put to the "protection" people in the form of queries and for an answer from any of said "protectionists" who will come with their answer in a manly manner over their own full signature and address.

What apology have you to offer for the awful frauds practiced by the republican census officials in manipulating the same in the interest of the administration party?

Why did "Conger" of the republican national committee, who is largely engaged in manufacturing in Tiffin, Ohio, and others of the same ilk throughout Ohio, reduce the wages largely since the passage of the McKinley bill?

What have you to say about Carnegie and others, among the largest manufacturers in Pittsburg, who have reduced the wages of their employes largely since the passage of the McKinley bill and now send $70,000 into Ohio to help elect the author of the monstrosity known as the McKinley "Bill"? Do you think that is good evidence of genuine love of the wage worker?

Do you think the McKinley "Bill" contains any clause in any way adapted to the relief or protection of the 50,000 old soldiers now luxuriating in the various poor-houses throughout the country that has been cursed with protection for about 30 years last past?

Would it not have been a good plan for Tom Reed and his co-workers in the last Billion Dollar Congress to have made an appropriation to defray the expenses of a decent mode of transportation for the dead bodies of the old soldiers who are daily dying in the Dayton Soldiers Home to their last resting place some five or six miles from the "Home," and thus avoid the barbarous proceeding now practiced of dumping them into a coarse, wooden box and sending them through a s-h-u-t-e to their final rest in the old soldiers' Potters field? Would this not be a good subject over which that curious creature "Five Alarm," "Ripper" Joe Foraker could appropriately shake out his old rag—"Bloody shirt"?

What was the trouble with Joe Foraker on Thursday night in his screed at Memorial hall that he did not for the edification of his small audience say something about the mental, moral and physical condition of the proprietors of the Commercial-protection-Gazette since the administering of that awful dose given them for the purpose of curing them of the lying habit by Doctor James E. Campbell?

Have you ever figured out the very important comparative tariff-protection-tax problem to illustrate two very important points? Suppose you have taxable property on your county duplicate rated at $1,000 on which the taxes are—say $30. Now, suppose you buy in the course of one year $1,000 worth of necessaries used by you and your family upon which you are taxed on the McKinley tariff tax "protection" duplicate $600. Now figure out the difference between the two systems of taxation and tell us how you like the balance sheet and the plan generally; and don't you forget while working out this little problem that you are compelled to pay taxes on the above plan each year of your life on both of the above tax duplicates.

What do you think about the plan adopted up at Bowling Green by the Wood county "protectionists" in offering the "premiums," or "prizes," or, probably more correctly speaking, "bribes," for the largest number of votes in the various voting precincts for Major William McKinley, jr., for governor of Ohio, together with his protection monstrosity? Do you think Elder Harrison and pious Postmaster Gerhart Wagoner would pass upon such a proceeding as proper, prudent or pious?

What is your opinion regarding the treatment meted out by Larry Neal to Major McKinley in causing him to play the "role" of crawfish in the matter of challenge for an eight-day debate with our noble old governor, James E. Campbell?

When is "Bill" going to inform the farmers why they should not receive a "bounty" of 50 per cent on each pound of butter, each bushel of grain, or on every other article the farmer produces, as well as to pay the sugar raisers in our country a bounty of 50 per cent on each pound of sugar which has already cost this government out of its treasury the snug little sum of ten millions of dollars?

Suppose you imagine what a string of lies could be exhibited if our republican friends would be as industrious in gathering them together in convenient statistical form as they are uttered by their various speakers and papers as they are in polling the various voting precincts to ascertain as near as practicable how much majority Gov. Campbell will have over McKinley.

Would it not be a grand plan for our republican primer-prohibition-protection papers to print pertinent points from the political utterances of such men in their party as Alfred E. Lee and General John Beatty, and thousands of other such men, who refuse to be dipped in McKinley's bogus tin-lead vat? Such men as the above are those who say to the "protection" pollers of precincts when they interview them as to their partisan proclivities, "Go to blades," etc., etc.

What have you to say, my dear "protection" preacher, when you view the stubborn, fearful financial fact that at the close of the war there was in circulation in this country a little over $50 per capita, while now, after 29 years of "protection" practiced upon the people, there is less than $5 per capita?

How do you explain the inconsistent preaching of our republican-prohibition-primer-"protectionist" preachers from the rostrum, or through their papers, when they "roast" the "alliance" and people's party advocates for asking the government to loan farmers and mechanics money at from 1 to 2 per cent interest, while for many years last past this "protected" government has been loaning millions of money to national bankers without any interest or taxes on their bonds deposited in Washington besides sending said bankers another 90 per cent on the bonds free of interest in addition to the semi-annual clipping of "old coupons" from the bonds which the government insures against every loss and sends out semi-annually to the poor suffering bankers free of charge?

Will you make a careful comparison between the value of money invested in national bank stock—woolen manufactories—pearl buttons—and other protected industries, including specially "sugar bounties," and that of the money invested by our farmers in their farms and stock thereon, and compute the profits on each, say, farm stock which is worth from 50 to 60 per cent less than par, and then view the stock in the foregoing "protected" parties ranging from 25 to 1,000 per cent. above par and tell us how you like it.

Isn't it lamentable to witness the poor deluded "protected" merchant who is trying to keep his head above water financially by selling goods at cost or less in the vain attempt to swim the McKinley-ized current as long as he can and avoid posting in his front windows the ominous words, "Closed for invoice."

How will the following do for such fellows to indulge in occasionally by way of a cheerful change from the foregoing gloomy aspect. Say you sing the following chorus, to-wit:

The Campbells are coming—O-ho—O-ho!
The "liars" are going—O-ho—O-ho!!?

Mr. Farmer suppose you sell your wool unwashed and washed at from 18 to 28 cents per pound to the "protected" woolen manufacturer and then buy it back from him after it is spun into stocking yarn or made up into cloth and pay him from one dollar ten cents to three dollars per pound for the same wool, how long would your physical and financial system hold out under the taking of that kind of McKinley physic?

What do you think of the case of John Iceberg Sherman? Isn't he in a lamentable—mental and political rattled—condition judging from some of his curious mathematical and geographical calculations as uttered on the 9th inst. in his great effort at Canton, where he said among other things, that the present silver dollar contained 427½ ounces of silver, which is over 35 pounds. He also said the difference between 77 cents and one dollar is 29 cents, and referred to McKinley as the Governor of the United States. And in speaking of the three southwestern states, mentioned them as the three southwestern counties. And his speech at Toledo recently savored strongly of the same rattled condition. What's the matter with John? Are the thoughts on his past career wrecking the poor old man or is Fire Alarm Foraker "rattling" poor John?

Have the tin-pail brigade among the wage workers to be compelled in the future to carry their dinners in that "bogus Piqua tin" pails and risk their lives by tin poisoning?

Will you kindly bear in mind that the expression "reduction of wages" is no longer used by the protected manufacturers; it is now, if you please, "readjustment of wages." How do you like this Carnegie, Conger et al. style of expressing the practical action of the robber tariff plan?

What do you think of the new charges brought against Gov. James E. Campbell and other honest leaders in the democratic anti-tariff tax party? It is now poverty—p-o-v-e-r-t-y is the crime charged to our noble present and future governor of Ohio.

If the tariff protection tax principle as put by the protectionists makes goods cheaper, why did the people in Chicago, after the great fire, petition congress for a rebate of the tariff on lumber, and also Jim Blaine in the state of Maine, after the great fire in Augusta, ask congress to "recirculate" on the lumber question? Why didn't Chicago and Blaine make the b-l-a-r-s-t-e-d f-a-r-i-n-e-r pay the tariff tax?

How about this old Ohio Lincoln club green turtle banquet now being prepared in Columbus in the coming February? Will "little Benny" be on hand, or will he refuse to condescend to as much as answer an invitation, as he did last February at the green turtle defaulting fiasco in the goodly city of Toledo?

Will you bear in mind that I am authorized by Gov. James E. Campbell to put the oft asked question to McKinley or any of his advocates to name one workingman who has had his wages raised by the "McKinley monstrosity?" Will you bear this in mind?

Now, without any superstition in the proposition, I prognosticate that as in the case of flipping the conger for the "Ada debate," Billy got the "tail," so also will he do likewise on election day in November.

TO HONOR KOSSUTH.

Budapest, Oct. 24.—The movement to present Kossuth with an estate near Dabas, in Hungary, is meeting with enthusiastic support. The estate in question is where Kossuth's parents are buried, and where he also wishes to be interred.

Should Kossuth live until April next he will be 90 years of age, and his Hungarian admirers are already making preparations to celebrate the occasion. The veteran patriot is said to be in fairly good health.

In vain the eyes are filled with light:
In vain the cheek with beauty glows,
Unless the teeth are pure and white,
Unless the breath is like the rose;
And SOZODONT alone supplies
These beauties that we all so prize.

SWIFT'S OYSTER JOKE.

A funny story is told of Dean Swift, who was a witty man, and fond of a joke at the expense of other people, as most witty people are. Many a writer in Harper's Young People. One very cold night, when he was travelling, he stopped at a little inn. There was only one fire in the house, and the guests of the inn, crowding about it, left no place for the new comer.

With a solemn face Dean Swift called to the hostler, and told him to get a peck of oysters immediately and take them out to his horse.

"Will your horse eat oysters, sir?" asked the astonished man.

"Just take them out and see," said the horse's master.

The people around the fire stared at the man who owned this curious horse, and nearly every one

NO HOPE FOR ENGLISH LITERATURE.

At the debatin' club las' night we all discussed a cure
"For the debilitated state of English lit'rachure."
"The stuff thet's writ for folks," I said,
"don't move 'em an' delight 'em,
Because the folks who write the things don't know enough enough to write 'em.

"The folks who write, they stuff their heads in some big cyclopedy, W'ich ain't no place fer mental food to feed the poor an' needy;
They're huntin' on an em'ty shelf, like poor
ol' Mother Hubbard,
An' go right by the open door of Mother
Natur's cupboard.

"They crawl into some libery far from the
worl's inspection,
Bury themselves in books beyond all hope of resurrection;
They cry out from their tombs, in which no
sun nor star can glisten,
An' weep because the livin' worl' don't fin'
no time to listen."

Then Elder Pettengell he asked: "Can you suggest a cure
For the debilitated state of English lit'rachure?"
"Ain't none; our authors' ignorance is far too dark for lightin',
While we who know enough to write hain't got no time for writin'."

BEESWAX.

There are about sixty species of sharks.

This is a good time of the year, by a little imprudence to get your rheumatism into condition to last you all winter.

Prince Krapotkin, the noted nihilist, meditates visiting America this winter and delivering lectures on prisons, socialism, and kindred topics.

In one particular this country seems to be in the rear. The largest railway depot in the world is at Birmingham, England. It covers 11 acres.

While a North Carolina butcher was cutting up a beef the other day he found "an 18 karat gold ring imbedded in one of the hind quarters."

A colored man has been seen fishing in the Caloosahatchie river, Florida, nearly every day for five years, and has never been seen to catch a fish.

The Goulds, Astors and Vanderbilts are their own insurers. None of the insurance companies, it is said, can boast of having their names on their lists.

Great Britain does not pay her volunteer troops for the time they pass in camp during the summer, but there is a growing feeling in military circles that she ought to.

The man who expectorates in the street car may be a dirty patriot, but he is no student of Chesterfield. When a man feels that he must spit he ought to ring the bell and get off the car.

George Stanton has spent over seven years in the Hawleyville, Ga., jail for idleness. His reason for not doing anything is that his brother, when he died, left money to all his relatives except George.

Only occasionally is a newspaper man in good luck financially. Thomas Lowry, the Minneapolis railway king, gave his daughter a draft for $2,000,000 on the day of her recent marriage to H. P. Robinson, a local newspaper editor.

The Atchison Globe thinks that when people read a good thing about a man in the papers they look at him the next day as if they hadn't seen it; when they read a mean thing about him, however, they look as if they had seen it.

The young king of Spain, recently at San Sebastian, could often be seen on the beach with wheelbarrow, spade and pail, shoveling sand and digging holes with all the delight of an infant American at Coney Island.

A Chicago man, after paying his fare on a street car, discovered he was in the wrong one. His demand for the return of his fare being refused, he obtained satisfaction by ringing up two fares on the register. It cost him $3, however, before a justice the next morning.

Race prejudice is quite active out in the west, especially against the Johns. A western newspaper closes an article about the canning enterprises of Yuba City by saying: "No Chinese are employed, and 14,000 cans are put up daily."

The smallest known species of hogs are quartered at the London zoological gardens. They came from the southern part of Australia, and are known as "the pigmy hogs of the antipodes." They are well formed, frisky and good natured and about the size of a muskrat.

Prof. Eben Norton Horsford, of Cambridge, says that for six years he has abandoned all other work and devoted himself exclusively to trying to find out who were the first discoverers of this country. He is now confident that the Northmen made their first landing on Cape Cod.

The department of agriculture of Victoria, Australia, sent circulars to the head teachers of all the state schools outside of the metropolitan area, a short time ago, asking for their views as to the desirability of giving instruction in agriculture to the children attending those schools. Of 1,248 teachers 84 per cent. are favorable to the introduction of agricultural lessons in the rural schools.

An ignorant old woman living in Augusta, Ill., who was supposed to be very poor, recently sent for the township supervisor, and slipping a bag from under her dress asked him to count the money in it. The amount was $1,901, and it represented the accumulations of years that she had been storing in her bustle. Having ascertained the value of her property the old woman made a will.

A letter received by an Augusta (Me.) publisher a few days ago from Salem, Ohio, was mutilated in a remarkable manner. The Ohio postmaster had inclosed the letter in an official envelope, along with a note explaining that the mail carrier who collected it had been shot by a highwayman, the charge passing through his pouch and its contents and taking effect in his leg.

Three or four years ago Rev. Mr. Baxter, of England, delivered a lecture in this country on his hobby, the end of the world. In this lecture he predicted that that dread event would take place in the year 1901, and that Gen. Boulanger, who would then be at the very height of his power, would be the anti-Christ foretold in the Apocalypse. Nothing has been heard from Mr. Baxter since the death of Gen. Boulanger.

If all the locomotives in the United States were coupled together they would make a train 3,000 miles long. Then add the passenger cars, and we should have 500 miles more, and if we wanted a huge mixed train and were to put in all box, flat and every other kind of freight car, our train would be more than 7,000 miles long. The passenger cars could carry more than 1,500,000 people; and upon the freight cars could be loaded the weight of all the pyramids of Egypt and all the state capitols of the United States.

Architects say that no more than one house in ten is finished at the time mentioned in the contract, and probably half the houses are completed from two months to a year behind time. In large buildings the familiar device is a clause in the contract forfeiting, on the part of the builder, a fixed sum for each day's delay, but when such a clause appears the contractor allows something for it in his bid, so that the choice is presented of submitting to delay or paying well for promptness.

Humboldt estimated that Asia stands at an average height of 1,150 feet above the level of the ocean; South America, 1,130; North America, 750; Europe, 670 feet. The average height of all land above sea level—omitting Africa and Australia, which are mostly south of the equator—is about 820 feet. The landed surface of the northern hemisphere is about 44,000,000 square miles; that of the southern hemisphere about 14,000,000 to 16,000,000 square miles, leaving a difference of say 28,000,000 square miles of land of an average height of 920 feet above sea level.

PLYMOUTH.

One of Indiana's Handsome Little Cities.

A Place Where There Has Been Inaugurated and Successfully Carried Out a Treatment for the Great Evil of Drunkenness.

Special Correspondence Toledo Bee.

Plymouth, Ind., Oct. 23.—This beautiful little city, of which the state of Indiana may well be proud, is the county seat of Marshall county, in the northern part of the state, and to the writer it seems could not be more favorably situated or blessed with a more whole-souled class of citizens. The town is accessible by the Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne & Chicago railway, of the great Pennsylvania system; also the Michigan division of the Lake Erie & Western railway, and the T., H. & I. division of the Vandalia line. The country around the city is rich and beautiful to look upon, while the farmer seems to be contented, and why should he not, when his labors are so richly rewarded as they are this year? The harvesting of the great crops of cereals, vegetables and produce has been finished, and the farmer is at his ease, while the beautiful landscape is in its most lovely attire.

In this county and town the writer had the pleasure of meeting some of the most interesting, intelligent and substantial citizens, people who take pride in keeping up a clean record in town and county affairs, needed reforms, and showing to the world the good intentions of her people. The most noticeable of the many good things accomplished there is the establishment of the Plymouth Institute, a place where the cure of inebrity and opium addiction is carried on, and at the head of which stands Plymouth's most honored and respected citizen, Mr. T. A. Borton, M. D. This institution, with these eminent men at the head of it, is surely deserving of all the good words that can be said for them in the noble work they are doing. Dr. Borton has been a practicing physician for over thirty years in this city, and has given a great deal of attention and time to his work in treating drunkenness as a disease. His experiments and investigations have proven to him that drunkenness is a disease and must be treated scientifically, while the doctor takes a great interest in this work, not for what there may be in it financially, but for the common good of humanity.. The purpose of this article is not to trace the causes of drunkenness, and the steps by which so many reach this unfortunate condition, but to call attention to the treatment of alcoholism which has proven so satisfactory and successful. The prevalence of the drinking habit in so many Christian families will justify the writer in giving quite an extended notice to this institution. For centuries alcohol has been the bane of the human family. It has prevailed and still prevails in all communities. What is it? and what is its nature? The majority of people say it is a degrading habit which can be conquered at will. But viewing this from the social side, the state says it is a misdemeanor for the man as a citizen. In some states it is made an offense punishable by imprisonment, as in Massachusetts. In Ohio a bill has been provided for the commitment of drunkards to hospitals under supervision of the state board. But this view of drunkenness stops short of the real nature. The physiological side must not be ignored. Viewed from this side it is a disease, and depends upon the diseased condition of the nervous system.

This condition is of course self-induced. If not, the state could not treat it as a misdemeanor. Dr. Borton is the first to discover a remedy for drunkenness as a disease, and from the remarkable cures already reported on reliable authority, there seems to be little doubt but what the worst cases can be cured in three weeks' time without inconvenience to the patient.

"My experiments were first made with the salts of gold used in medicine, and after countless efforts, sometimes doubting, I at last discovered in the double chloride of gold the remedy sought, also using an electric current in the treatment of patients. The doctor claims that his remedy has never yet failed when properly used, and in proof of his claim he cites many who have been cured by its use. The institution at this place is under the personal supervision of Dr. Borton, who not only has the assistance of skillful physicians, but has also the well wishes and support of the entire populace of his town. The good people being willing and ready at any time to throw open their houses and receive this afflicted people into their families as boarders while there receiving treatment. There are in this town and county a dozen or more men whose transformation from drunkenness to sobriety, from insatiable craving of appetite for strong drink to freedom from it, is the surprise and delight of all who knew them. The same cure has been effected for many others who have come to this place and taken the treatment.

This institution, it is proper to say, is no sanitarium, and no restraints are placed around a patient. He is not shut up, nor is he even attended by a professional nurse unless his physical condition is such as to require it. The patient comes here, secures a boarding place, and reports for treatment three or four times a day. The rest of the time he does what he pleases.

"Can he take a drink occasionally, if he wants it?" will doubtless be asked. "Certainly, and the physician in charge will furnish him as much of the best brand of whisky as he wants to take with him and drink as often and as copiously as he chooses. The "dry" season generally continues with them from twenty-four to twenty-eight hours and then disappears. The effect of the chloride of gold injection is marked from the start. The other day a patient was brought in, in that state known as being "as drunk as a biled owl." Thirty minutes later, after the injection in his arm, he was intelligently sober. He was given his allotment of whisky and drank it with his old time appetite. Forty-eight hours afterwards his appetite for whisky had entirely disappeared, and a half filled bottle of the whisky was no temptation for him. This is but one case, while the physicians tell me that it is a type of nearly all the cases treated. Sometimes a patient refuses to drink from the start, and reinforces the treatment with his will power, but this, it is said, has no influence, the object being to eradicate and eliminate the appetite from the system. When a patient has a weak stomach and cannot retain raw whisky, the cure is less rapid, and steady progress is made only after the tone of the stomach is fully restored.

Prominent among the many patients cured at his place is Mr. A. R. Weber, a prominent business man of Plymouth. To the writer he used these words: "I had been on a slow drunk for eighteen years, till in the past two months I got so bad that it was a common occurrence for me to get up in the morning and take ten or a dozen glasses of whisky before breakfast, and during the balance of the day would make away with twenty-five or thirty glasses of beer, but to-day, six weeks after taking the full course of treatment as given by Dr. Borton, I am able to get along without the bad stuff. I have no appetite or desire for it in the least, and I find my nerves are steady, and I am perfectly able to control myself in every way, and not only that, I have the satisfaction of knowing that the three or four dollars a day that I passed over the counter for drinks is now accumulating in the bank to my credit."

Another prominent citizen, Mr. B. E. Ryder, testifies that after a week's treatment at this institution he is more than pleased. He is perfectly satisfied in his own mind that it is a disease, and that the treatment given at this place and in this scientific manner is doing its work, for in one week's treatment his appetite has entirely left him, and he feels like a new man ready to start on a new lease of life.

To those addicted to the use of morphine, opium, or cocaine the cure can readily be effected save in those of very long standing, and who are consuming large quantities of this drug. In a case like this a little longer time might be required, but the most despondent drunkard or the wolst enslaved opium eater who places himself in this institution is assured that in a few days or a week he can say farewell to his favorite drug, never to take it up, this too without nervous shock or prostration. They place no restraint of any kind, nor do they ask the patient to exercise his will power in the least. "We allow them to use liquor or alcohol as they desire, doing so with the positive knowledge that they will give it up of their own free will."

Periodical drinkers say, "You can do me no good. I only drink occasionally," but they assure all such that in their cases the cure can be effected much more rapidly than the so-called "steady drinker," for the periodical drinker is the only way, while the steady drinker has arrived at the station. It seems hard for a person to realize that he is an inebriate, as is instanced in the remark we often hear: "Why I can quit drinking any day." Experience shows us that the "any day" is rarely if ever reached. They do not treat all cases exactly alike. Experience has shown them that each patient must be treated as an individual, and in this treatment it requires only three weeks to effect a cure. They will not treat anyone for less time. All patients are required to report at their office three or four times a day, according to the severity of the case.

In the Plymouth Institute we see light for thousands of darkened homes, and wish, out of the conviction of this fact, that we might see something that would lead the Christian church and ministry to investigate the merits of this treatment for themselves. It will bear scrutiny, and surely many families of the church need the help which it offers. We often hear Christian people say: "I have no confidence in any help for the drunkard but the grace of God." With such persons I have no contention about the competency of grace to do all that it proposes, but if drunkenness has its physical basis in a diseased condition of the nervous system, it is a serious question as to how far the grace of God directly and primarily affects the physical organization and condition. That the secondary effects of grace are bracing and helpful to the physical man we make no doubt, but grace, like all other vivifying forces, must have favorable conditions. Alcohol touches and blunts the mental and moral faculties, as well as the physical organization. It shuts out all gracious influences and ministries from the heart.

There must be some who are backward about taking this treatment from fear of falling back into the old habits. This system can be no more guarantee against a lapse than it can give a man who is not given to drink that he will never take it up again. It simply puts the drunkard back to where he was before the habit of drunkenness was formed, free from appetite. If he is inclined to help himself it will be an easy matter for him to remain free.

A great deal more might be said to the credit of the Plymouth Institute, the able manner in which it is conducted, and the way in which it is regarded by this enlightened community, but the thousands of people who read this and who are more or less interested in temperance and church work, cannot help but wish and look for great good to follow in this movement, and success to the institution. CLUB AND SOCIAL.

What Is Offered for Amusement and Instruction.

The Law kindergarten room was filled yesterday afternoon with the members of the Women's Colloquial club and ladies who were for the first time attending one of its meetings. Mrs. R. L. Segur presided, and the paper for discussion was read by Mrs. Judge Harmon.

The working girl's meeting, to talk about an evening school in cooking, was announced as to take place in Walbridge hall next Wednesday evening, and to be addressed by Misses Scott and Campbell, teachers of cooking in the Manual Training school. The ladies present were invited to attend.

Mrs. E. S. Fray announced the likelihood of a woman's paper being started in this city by Mrs. C. Q. Murphy, a weekly, the price of which would be only $1 a year, and asked the ladies to interest themselves in getting the paper on a paying basis, by subscriptions, by voluntary contributions and by interesting other ladies in the project.

The next meeting of the club was announced for the same place on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Chas. Cravens will read the paper. Subject, "Discipline." Hereafter these meetings will begin promptly at 4 o'clock, so that adjournment may be reached at 5:30.

The paper read by Mrs. Harmon was from the Forum, "The Higher Education of Women," by Alice Freeman Palmer, long president of Wellesley college.

The Ladies' union of the Unitarian church met yesterday afternoon with Mrs. A. D. Pelton, Huron street. A large amount of business was transacted, but the preparations for the coming "dairy-maids' festival" necessitates another meeting next week, which also will be held with Mrs. Pelton, on Friday afternoon.

The Shakespeare club will witness the presentation of "Cymbeline" at Wheeler's on Monday evening and hold its regular meeting on Tuesday evening with Mrs. C. Anchard, Madison street.

The New Century club meets Friday evening next, with Mrs. F. D. Jermain, 1943 Summit street. The essayist will be Mrs. Rosa L. Segur, her subject "Taxation, Its Wrongs and the Remedy." A very interesting paper is assured, and a lively discussion upon it is probable.

Room 9, Fort Industry block, has been secured for the meetings of the Political Equality club, and the next meeting will be held there one week from to-day. The election of officers will be concluded, and the club will get itself down to a working basis.

Mrs. E. S. Fray and Mrs. C. Q. Murphy have been invited to go to Bowling Green on Tuesday evening next to deliver an address on suffrage, and in the event of their acceptance it is likely a club will be organized.

"The Reception of the Nations," a three-act drama written by Mrs. Josephine Scott, of Perrysburg, adapted for amateur performers for W. C. T. U. and Suffrage associations, will probably be brought out in this city the coming season.

The very beautiful wedding of Mr. James Duffield and Miss Emma Coleman, which occurred Tuesday at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, was followed by a reception given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Duffield are now in New York, and after a tour of the east will return to Toledo, remaining a few weeks until the completion of their residence in Lima, where their permanent home will be.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of Woodbridge W. C. T. U. will be held on Monday afternoon next, with Mrs. Ellen Deppes, 1131 Erie street.

All those interested in organizing a Catholic literary and musical society are requested to meet at the residence of C. A. Rowsey on Lagrange street Wednesday evening next, instead of Tuesday, at 8 o'clock.

Between contentment and happiness there is about the same difference as between the lives of the oyster and the lark.

DEMAND MADE ON CHILI.

She Must Make Amends for the Riots

Which Resulted in the Death of Americans.

Indemnity in Money to the Families of the Dead, an Apology to the United States and the Punishment of the Guilty is Called for.

New York, Oct. 24.—A special dispatch to the Herald from Washington, says the president had a conference yesterday with Secretary Tracy, Attorney General Miller and John W. Foster regarding the report of Capt. Schley on his investigation into the assault committed upon American seamen in Valparaiso recently.

The Herald's corespondent says he was informed on the highest authority that the government would take a strong and aggressive position.

President Harrison was said to be the most outspoken advocate of this course. It was in a tone of exceeding bitterness that he referred to Chili's continued hostility to us. He said the time had come when we must teach the Chilian people that our patience in dealing with them is exhausted. He instanced their treatment of Minister Egan. The conference lasted from 3:30 to 6 o'clock.

It was decided that our national honor demanded that we should act promptly and with corresponding firmness.

At the close of the conference a cable dispatch was sent to Minister Egan at Santiago, instructing him to communicate to the Chilian provisional government the indignation of the government at the assault upon the sailors of the Baltimore. It further instructed him to demand:

First, an indemnity in money to be paid to the families of the dead sailors and to the families of such of the injured as may die.

Second, the arrest and punishment of the participants in the assault, and Third, a suitable apology to the United States.

The tone of the dispatch indicates that the administration will brook no delay in securing a settlement of the matter.

Chili must do what she is asked to do and do it speedily. The situation is regarded as one of extreme gravity.

A PERMANENT INSTITUTION of many years standing. Established for the special treatment of NERVOUS, CHRONIC, SKIN AND BLOOD DISEASES.

NERVOUS DEBILITY,

Decay of Body and Mind, Self Distrust,

POOR MEMORY, WEAK EYES,

STUNTED DEVELOPMENT, LACK OF ENERGY,

Impoverished Blood, Low Vitality,

And all effects of

ABUSES, EXCESSES, IMPROPER LIFE, ETC.,

which renders MARRIAGE UNHAPPY and LIFE MISERABLE

Are

PRIVATELY, SAFELY AND PERMANENTLY CURED.

Nervous Debility.

Those suffering from Nervous Debility, the symptoms of which are a dull distressed mind, which unfits them for performing business and social duties; make happy marriages impossible, distress the action of the heart, causing flushes of heat, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, cowardice, fear, dreams, short breathings, melancholy, tire easily of company and have a preference to be alone; feeling as tired in the morning as when retiring; lost manhood, white bone deposits in the urine, nervousness, trembling, confusion of thoughts, watery and weak eyes, dyspepsia, constipation, paleness, pain and weakness in the limbs, etc., should consult us immediately and be restored to health. By a wise course of treatment, adapted to your age, sex and physical condition, the tone of your system can be raised, the tendency to impure thoughts removed, and the strength and vigor of health restored to the debilitated organs.

Marriage.

Married persons or young men contemplating marriage, aware of physical weakness, loss of procreative powers, impotency, or any other disqualifications, speedily relieved. He who places himself under our care may confide in our honor as gentlemen, and confidently rely on our skill as Physicians. We have had many years experience in hospitals and private practice and are graduates of the most eminent Medical Colleges of the U. S.

A PERFECT RESTORATION GUARANTEED.

Organal Weakness

Immediately cured and full vigor restored. This distressing affliction which renders life a burden and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by victims of improper indulgence. The most chaste must acknowledge that the passions are the great magnet by which the whole world is attracted. Destroy them and what have we? Man is no longer interested in the opposite sex; the interchange of that blissful sense which attracts and interests the whole world, exists no longer; man ceases to be what God made him; the world is no longer interesting to him, and remorse and disappointment are his constant companions. We have devoted years to the study of the best methods of treating the various forms in which this disease manifests itself. We treat every case on its own merits, and thousands to-day join in thanking us for the new lease of life and happiness our skill has opened up to them.

Young Men who have become victims of SOLITARY VICE—that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an untimely grave, thousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, may call with full confidence.

We warn all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for business, study, society or marriage.

A CURE WARRANTED.

PERSONS RUINED IN HEALTH by UNLEARNED PRETENDERS, who keep trifling with them month after month, giving POISONOUS AND INJURIOUS COMPOUNDS, should apply immediately.

REMARKABLE CURES

Perfected in OLD CASES which have been NEGLECTED or UNSKILLFULLY TREATED. No Experiments or Failures. Parties treated by mail and express, but where possible, one personal interview is preferred.

Curable Cases Guaranteed. Address with postage.

MOST PEOPLE

Know only a comparatively few things thoroughly—all else is more or less uncertain.

Take your own case. What do you know about CARPETS, for instance? Are you competent to detect poor materials, or imperfect weaving, or unreliable colorings, or old-style patterns?

No.

Then will it not be wisdom on your part to make your purchases of CARPETS where all these points are taken care of in your interest, and where you are protected, not only from direct misrepresentation, but from the results of your own inexperience?

That seems plain enough.

Just two things we promise every customer. They are these:

That every salesman shall tell the whole truth about every piece of goods offered for sale; that anything which proves imperfect, through the appearance of any hidden defect subsequent to purchase, shall be made right.

The name of our firm stands behind these two guarantees.

Very likely you are thinking of purchasing one or more CARPETS shortly. If so, consider what we have said.

THE PASSING DAY.

On the far heights the joyous dawn hath stepped.
The sleeping earth turns swiftly towards the sun;
Into the valleys hath his brightness crept.
His splendor floods the world, the day's begun.

Earth's brilliant magnet onward swings, and flowers
In homage bend to him, their king, on high;
He seems to charm the languid, heated hours,
A blazing jewel in the midday sky.

Now the dim twilight hastens from afar;
The pensive breeze wierd music has begun;
Majestic Night, crowned with her western star,
The dews are gath'ring and the day is done.

A SONG FOR THE TREES.

A song for the beautiful trees.
A song for the forest grand,
The garden of God's own hand,
The pride of His centuries,
Hurrah for the mighty oak,
For the maple, the sylvan queen,
For the lords of the emerald cloak,
For the ladies in living green!

For the beautiful trees a song,
The peers of glorious realm,
The linden, the ash and the elm,
The poplar stately and strong.
Hurrah for the beech tree trim,
For the hickory stanch at core,
For the locust thorny and grim,
For the silvery sycamore!

A song for the palm and the pine,
And for every tree that grows,
From the desolate zone of snows
To the zone of the burning line.
Hurrah for the warders proud,
Of mountain and plain and vale,
That challenge the thunder cloud
And buffet the stormy gale.

A song for the forest aisled
With its Gothic roof sublime,
The solemn temple of time,
Where man becometh a child,
As he listens the anthem rod
Of the wind in high attitude
The hymn that telleth his soul
That God is the voice of the wood.

So long as the rivers flow,
So long as the mountains rise,
May the forests sing to the skies
And shelter the earth below.
Hurrah for the beautiful trees!
Hurrah for the forest grand!
The pride of His centuries,
The Garden of God's own hand.

—W. H. Venable.

Of course, all the women in the country were interested in what the world's Methodist council had to say about them. And of course they were pleased to learn that these great and good delegates believed that, when St. Paul said "let women keep silence in the churches," and "let them ask of their husbands at home," he meant the women of Corinth and not of Toledo and Adrian and Detroit and Cleveland. And now when the world's delegates have said "give them full churchly rights and privileges," what will the "general conference" say? It would be a great calamity if Dr. Buckley or any other great, nice, little, narrow man should successfully insist upon woman's banishment; for if St. Paul's exhortation is to be applied to the case it must be adhered to in its entirety. If woman is acknowledged as a teacher and leader in church work, then this door and that cannot be shut in her face because there's "pie" in that room and it isn't thought best that she should have any! But it was not to discuss the subject at all, only to review casually the points of especial interest to us.

You were surprised at the advanced position taken by foreign delegates and the words of weighty good sense that sustained it. You were also a bit mortified that those from our own southern country should have shown such small-minded aversion of the subject. You were amused at Dr. B's speech which concluded with this sentiment:

St. Paul said women should not take the place of men. Woman could not do the work of preachers without collision with the laws of nature. They must be mothers or they must be preachers, not both. Woman should not give up a higher bower for a lower.

If the New York editor was posted in the game he would know that a woman doesn't "give up a higher bower for a lower one." The higher bower gathers in the lower and takes the trick.

This stubborn "friend" of Miss Willard and her coworkers might at least make exceptions in favor of those women who, having no husbands, cannot be mothers, respectably, or whose children have "grown up and gone away," and whose ripe experience in the home and school is worth more to the church in its genuine heart work than tomes of dry theology—but there we go, discussing again in a most "unwomanly" manner.

Of course you laughed, as we all did, when you read how Dr. Hass fervently said, "if any man has a higher estimation of woman than I have, let him show his face," and half the delegates rose to their feet while the rest applauded. That was the neatest kind of humor.

In the meantime women in the church will strive on, struggle on, pray on and march on, just as if they were not the "weaker vessels" doing the heaviest part of the work while men reserve for themselves all emoluments and salaries. But those little pink streaks in the sky that keep broadening, mean something.

In some respects the American girl, the fairest product of a free civilization, is setting the fashion for the world. A distinguished English writer with "Hon." before his name has been saying that one of England's first social reforms should be the making of its laws for marriageable young women more like the unwritten ones which have constituted the American girl the most sensible, able-to-take-care-of-herself sort of person—an enviable type of girlhood that develops into useful and noble womanhood. The Hon. critic believes that a larger social freedom will enable young women to choose more wisely, because they will know more of the men whom they may be expected to elect for lovers and husbands. And it will "rescue them from the doll's life" they now lead. The discouragement to marriage where the social boundaries are made so insurmountable, is another phase of the subject considered.

The larger freedom which the English writer commends is already growing in the old world social centers, and is directly attributable to the influence of the American woman. It was she who dared public opinion, or who, rather, thought nothing about it, and set the fashion for herself, to ride on the top of buses and tram cars. It is she who goes about the streets of their old cities as she does at home, and English and French girls begin to see how stupid they are, continually hovered over by chaperones.

And the time is coming when the American woman with her native genius and independence will no longer copy the dress fashions of long-established authorities over-sea, persons whose aims, ambitions and habits of life are so different from our own we have no cause for following in their lead in this important respect. We may confidently expect the new reform costume that is so long taking shape will be an American "invention" and ultimately a perfect success.

The Dignity of Gowns.

A great deal is said in print about women adopting men's attire. The mannish waistcoat, shirt-front, neck-tie, hat and coat have all had their turn. But women are not ahead of men in their craze for the others' garments. The cap and gown question is agitating our universities and court rooms; priests wear the girdled gown and the plea that is made in every case is "the dignity" of it. Perhaps the man's idea of the gown in combination with an under costume that lets go the idea of skirts and all other flowing garments except the one, may be the ideal we are aiming at. It must be confessed, however, that trousers and gown, except "adapted" for the stage, do not make a graceful combination, according to present day education in taste. If there is anything more comical than a fat, waddling old church father in his gown, it is a fat, waddling, puffy, bewigged old judge. (Will the wigs come next?) The lord high chancellor of England sits on the woolsack with long wig curls straying down his shoulders either side to add to his "dignity."

Well, we wont say as mean things about the men who want to wear gowns, as they say about the women who want to try the comfortableness of some articles of men's apparel.

Here's a funny little squib from a daily newspaper:

"How do you like my new gown?"

"Oh, my! I think it is just too lovely. And how do I look in mine?"

"Superb. Couldn't be more exquisite."

"And what's the matter with mine? Doesn't it fit elegantly?"

"Perfectly grand; just like a Worth production."

"Won't we cut a swath out there, though?"

"Oh, no! Guess not! We'll just make 'em green with envy."

The above remarks were overheard in the west end of the government building yesterday morning by a reporter.

Sounds very much like society ladies' talk, doesn't it?

But it wasn't.

The talking was done by three very dignified gentlemen.

They were the justices of the new court of appeals, and they were clothed in the handsome judicial gowns of their judicial office.

Splendid Testimony.

Our Chicago member of the Household, who wrote this summer defending cycling for ladies, writes as follows:

My wheeling is about over for this season, but we have decided to form a wheel club, composed of the ladies and gentlemen who have been riding together this summer. This will be the first club in the city, so far as we know, to admit ladies. We shall meet twice a month, one meeting each month to be a theater party and the other a social. This, with my Chautauqua twice a month, will give me all the club I shall want. Two weeks ago we rode 43 miles one day, and on our last ride we shall make 25 miles.

If anyone believes wheeling is injurious for young ladies, we wish such an one could see the daily life of this cycler, who can ride 43 miles a day. Her mother's helpful companion, wise counselor to younger brothers and sisters is she, as well as her father's right hand man in business, his bookkeeper and cashier. In fact, so busy that her recreation on her wheel has been her only summer vacation.

How the women's clubs do multiply. A few years ago a woman's club was a novelty, and all but the "strong-minded" stood aloof and looked a little sideways at them. Now we can hardly keep track of them. In Albany, N. Y., "The Women's University Club" is the latest. Its objects are "the promotion of literature and art and the social welfare of college-bred women."

Toledo has a dozen clubs the existence of which was scarcely dreamed of two years ago. And already the talk of a club house for women is growing, such as Grand Rapids, Mich., has dedicated, and which will shortly pay for itself and be a good investment besides in its rooms and offices which are rented.

Washington is a beautiful city, but it is not a paradise for the janitor, or rather for the janitress. The Working Woman, of that city, tells of a woman aged 63 who has been for ten years janitress of one of the public school buildings. During that time she has had to sweep, clean and dust four rooms, wash twenty windows and in the fall and winter care for the fires. For this she has received the magnificent remuneration of $16 per month until the beginning of the current year, when her pay was reduced to $13.32 per month.

Perhaps some woman reading this will understand why working women and business women need the "influence" of citizenship. They will comprehend what was meant when politicians said the negro can never have a fair chance for a living until he is admitted to the full rights of citizenship. My lady in the parlor with a bread winner on 'Change has had the laws, written and unwritten, that govern women all promulgated for her and she is always the example chosen in argument.

Revival of Patriotism.

We are invited in these columns to be patriotic; to appreciate the freedom of American institutions, to glory in this republic. Verily so to do was our intention, but the reminder is needed occasionally. We enjoy the blessing of which our ancestors laid the foundations. Without teaching the youth the direful consequences of ceasing to hold the building intact above the foundations.

These states had a period of rest from the rising lad at the school exhibitions thundering forth the burning words of noted statesmen of liberty and patriotism, and these same boys fulfilled the aspirations for them in 1861, when called upon to defend that country from schism and slavery—it was the ripened grain of the seeds which rooted in the springtime of school days.

Then there came a lull of peace when the wounds were healed, and the sad, sad poems were recited at the school exhibitions, of bravery and partings and melancholy reunions; praises of living and dead heroes and heroines.

Time passed. The scars almost disappeared, or were kept alive by rekindling the "campfires;" a feeling of security prevailed, a reaction came, colloquial comedies were enacted, comic poems were recited, fun and frolic were the order of the day.

Then in 1890-91 preparations are begun in earnest for a world's fair; for competition in science, art and trade. The brain and labor of Americans are to join hands in showing the old world what the new can and will accomplish. The wedge has been driven which shall open our ports for untrammeled commerce. Dusty, musty books of American history are dragged forth from inconceivable places. Ferdinand and Isabella occupy high places in literary circles. People are continually speaking of Columbus, and historical clubs for the study of the Columbian period are numerous. But let us hear something through these columns of other explorers who disputed with him the honor of discovering this continent in the north.

The present rage for American history will open anew in the hearts of the boys, the love of country and patriotic speeches will again resound in schools and colleges and the orchestra of the nation will peal forth

"My country 'tis of thee
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing."

AUTUMNAL.

The mountain ash has ta'en
Upon its fruit a ruddy autumn stain;
The pastured grain-fields hold
Only a sweet remembrance of their gold;
And the aforetime brightly emerald bough
Is richly russet now.

But Love still holds its spring;
And not a note of all the birds that sing
But hath a subtle thrill,
And Love's bright moon is in the ascendant still.
Fall leaf, blow wind, come snow with icy dart,
If Love but warm the heart!

Gum and Finger Nails.

Dear Household:—Allow me to say something to the girl who appears to enjoy eating her finger nails. Surely she does not do this because she is hungry, for nails are anything but nourishing and are hard to digest. It is said that the biting of nails is due to nervousness, and if, when the victim feels a desire to bite she would substitute a small piece of gum for the nails, a disagreeable habit would soon be overcome.

P. S.—Then discontinue chewing the gum.

Appropriate Dressing.

In walking down the street the other day with a friend she remarked: "There is Miss R——. How pretty she looks! She always dresses so appropriately." That last word struck me, for it is a subject to which my attention has been called thousands of times—this one of "appropriateness in dress." It seems to me I could write columns upon it and not exhaust my material. It was brought to my mind very forcibly the other day. A young lady called upon me—she was out on a business errand, to hunt up a washer-woman. I believe — and just dropped in informally. It was a most disagreeable, rainy day, and she were a rain cloak that had evidently seen wear, a pair of shoes and rubbers ditto, and a straw hat that had very meekly endured hard service during the whole summer, but was not yet allowed to rest.

This part of the costume was all proper enough, considering the day and errand, but—in her ears were costly solitaires, and as she pulled off her gloves and unfastened her cloak I observed she was wearing three diamond rings and a brooch set with a number of the same costly stones. Here was where the incongruity came in. Those diamonds would have looked very suitable and appropriate worn at a ball or reception, but it struck me that to put them on to go out and hunt a washer-woman on a rainy day was quite out of place.

Coming home from a journey up the lakes some months ago I saw a lady board the steamer at one of the intermediate resorts. She was dressed in black sateen and wore a pair of slippers that had once been black, but were then grey. However, one did not notice her dress for attention was immediately called to the half-dozen rings set with glistening stones that she was wearing. One hand was so loaded she was unable to put on her glove and was obliged to carry it.

How many similar instances one will see in a single morning's shopping, or in even a short journey! When will the American woman learn that a well-dressed person is not necessarily an extravagantly and showily dressed one?—Blanche.

OVER OUR TEACUPS.

It is said that the Princess of Wales was the first patron of the Society for the Protection of Birds, which now numbers so many fashionable ladies of London in its membership. This royal lady forbade the use of plumage as dress ornaments in her own family, the idea was taken up by the Duchess of Portland and other fashion leaders, and now 950 of these ladies are pledged never to have a dress or bonnet trimmed with any materials to obtain which bright plumaged birds must be slaughtered. This is humane, kindly, lovable, and it is to be hoped the ladies on this side of the water who are so quick to ape obnoxious foreign fashions will as quickly follow this one which happens to be right and right womanly.

Men are very amusing some times, never more so than when they attempt to generalize about women. That they are unconsciously funny, is of course the most amusing part of it. For instance, here is the Atchison Globe coming to sit in judgment upon us, and announcing—

There are two kinds of women—one kind sits and weeps silently about her wrongs and the other storms and raves about her rights.

Two kinds of women only, and classified as silent weepers over wrongs and rampant ravers over rights. Of course the assertion is not worth argument upon, but the probability is that the editor who penned it has not fathomed even one side of the one woman who is nearest him in his life, and never will, though he thinks he knows all about all of them, and can tell it all in one breath, with one dash and a period.

The Boston Herald wants A Woman's Words (a Hoosier campaign prohibition oration) scattered broadcast over the country as the best thing said yet. Who says we are not "in it" (when we choose to be)?

By the way, do you know where originated that expressive bit of—well—slang as it gets called? Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney uses it in one of her earlier girls' books, where the heroine complains of herself that she never sees a good time that she doesn't wish she was "in it." Her story antedates the common use of the expression, whether she originated it or not.

Women have recently been admitted to practice law in the courts of Colorado.

Rev. Florence Kollock, of Illinois, has not been once absent from her pulpit on account of sickness during a pastorate of sixteen years.

In more than one puff above the elbow may be found a pocket for the tiny kerchief that at this times such a nuisance and to dispose of which is a puzzle.

Velvet ribbon trimming of all widths are in high favor and gaining in popularity every day. Puffs, which are also very popular, are either headed or framed in by rows of ribbon velvet.

The great number of the government inspectors who examine pork for trichinæ through microscopes are women, they having been found to do the work much more satisfactorily than men.

Mrs. Martha J. Lamb, who is an authority on American history without her peer in the sex, is a member of twenty-six learned societies, among which are several which have no other female members on their list.

It begins to look as if Providence was against the disciples of the dress reform movement who have arranged to parade the streets of Boston on the first rainy Saturday in October. This particular day of the week persists in the brightest sunshine.

Mrs. Emily Huntington Miller has been appointed superintendent of the Woman's college of the Northwestern University of Evanston. She succeeds Dr. Rena A. Michaels, who has been dean of the college for six years. Mrs. Miller is best known as a writer of children's stories.

A bright woman living in one room with a folding bed makes one set of pillows serve on a low, manufactured divan, rug-covered, as well as on the bed. She had them made square and large, and by day they are incased in slips of plain sateen, snugly buttoned, while at night they are clad in snowy linen. This may be a suggestion to some other woman similarly situated.

Mrs. Helen M. Remington, of San Francisco, claims to have been the first to devise the use of threads running against counterfeiting. She received a patent for the idea and the process, and is going to Washington to assert a claim through banknote paper as a safeguard against the government for the use of her invention, which, she says, began five or six years before her patent rights expired.

It is said that skirts, according to Paris fashions, are to be mere close-fitting than ever. White skirts have been entirely discarded; they have been ostracized almost as much as white stockings, and every underskirt must match the street dress in color. It must be made of silk, with two pinked flounces, one just on the outside and the other in, and both below the hem of the skirt. They are very pretty, but like all pretty things they come high.

SCRAP BASKET.

Maria Mitchell, of ever-to-be-revered memory, was credited by some of those who knew her with entertaining doubts concerning the immortality of the soul. On one occasion, in the course of a conversation upon religion with Whittier, she asked the question: "Have you perfect faith in the doctrine of immortality?" The poet's reply was: "I cannot conceive that the soul of Maria Mitchell will ever die."

James Russell Lowell once wrote in an album:

Too pressed to wait, upon her slate
Fame writes a name or two in doubt;
Scarce written, these no longer please,
And her own finger rubs them out.
It may ensue, fair girl, that you
Years hence this yellowing leaf may see,
And put to task, your memory ask
In vain, "This Lowell, who was he?"

For moths salt is the best exterminator. The nuns in one of the hospital convents have tried everything else without success, and their experience is valuable, as they have so much clothing of the sick who go there, and strangers when dying often leave there quantities of clothing, etc. They had a room full of feathers, which were sent there for pillow-making, and they were in despair, as they could not exterminate the moths until they were advised to try common salt. They sprinkled it around, and in a week or ten days they were altogether rid of the moths. They are never troubled now.

My Lady's Song.

Ah! repeat the music's tale
Love shall perish not, nor fail!
I forget the fear of death,
Breathe in thought immortal breath;
I believe in broadening truth,
In the generous creeds of youth,
In consoling hopes that climb
Up to some triumphal time,
And a dream of splendor bring—
As I listen and you sing.

—Joseph Truman.

CHAT.

"M. B. N." prescribes rather a dangerous remedy for a really worrisome habit. There is a case on record of a girl who died of some disease of the stomach which her physicians could not pronounce upon, and a post mortem examination showed the delicate lining of the stomach filled with sharp particles of finger-nails which had caused festering, inflammation and engendered disease that resulted in death. Gum chewing is not likely to prove fatal except to beauty, as it causes abnormal development of the jaws, and to agreeable presence and manners.

One of the grandest results of the world's fair will be the patriotic reawakening that Zenobia foretells.

The secret of good dressing is embodied in the observations of Blanche on the subject. It is the first thing to be considered. A woman's dress should conform to the needs of her work, her position, her "style," and to the size of her pocketbook.

Kitchen Conference.

It's almost time to think about Thanksgiving. "Table Talk" gives a recipe for fruit cake made for Thanksgiving that will last for Christmas and New Years, if and if—and declares it to be "delicious" and "superb." And Mrs. Rorer's magazine knows whereof it speaks on subjects of this character:

The ingredients are: One pound powdered white sugar; one pound sifted flour; three-fourths pound sweet butter; twevе eggs; one teaspoonful soda; two pounds raisins stoned and chopped; two pounds English currants thoroughly cleaned; one pound citron cut in small strips or checks; one-fourth ounce each of ground cinnamon, cloves, and nutmeg; one gill of brandy, wine, or strong clear coffee, as preferred (we generally use coffee). The whites and yolks of the eggs can be beaten separately or together. We have tried both ways, and discover little, if any, difference in the result. The recipe will make several loaves of cake. They should be baked slowly, and a long time.

Icing may be made to suit the taste. We prefer the boiled icing for this as for most cakes. Young cooks may not know how it is made, and I will tell them our way.

For the whites of two eggs, use one teacupful of granulated sugar. Put the sugar on the stove, adding enough water to keep it from burning, and let it boil until the syrup "hairs" from the spoon. While the sugar is boiling, the whites of eggs may be beaten to a stiff froth. When the syrup is ready, take it from the stove, and into it stir the eggs, adding only a spoonful at a time, and stirring thoroughly, that they may be fully and evenly cooked.

We usually make this cake for Thanksgiving, and have plenty left for Christmas and New Year. We put it into a tin box, leave it in a cool, dry place, and when spring comes it is still good—if allowed to last so long. We find it a "handy thing to have in the house" in case of emergency, such as unexpected company, or a press of work which leaves no time for the usual cake and pie-baking.

Our fruit-cake is, of course, a rich cake, and we do not recommend it for frequent use in a family of children, or for any one inclined to dyspepsia seriously used in its proper place, we find it eminently satisfactory.—Helena Korte.

Stop that cough! Else the bronchial tubes will be enlarged and the delicate tissues of the lungs exposed to injury. No other medicine is so speedily operative in throat and lung troubles as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. A few doses have been known to break up an obstinate and distressing cough. Sufferers from asthma, bronchitis, croup, consumption, sore throat, and whooping cough find a sure relief in the use of this preparation. It soothes the inflamed membrane, promotes expectoration, and induces repose. Try Don't be without it in the house. Sallie E. Stone, Hurt's store, Va., writes: "I have found, in my family, that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was always a certain cure for colds and coughs."

"Five years ago I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and had been given up by my physicians. I began to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and was completely cured."—Anga A. Lewis, Ricard, N. Y.

AMMONIA
"By any name It smells the same"
HARTSHORN

Good for scouring, cleansing, for a soap powder, for a fertilizer: Bad in any article of food, yet it is used in some baking powders palmed off as "absolutely pure." Is it in yours? Test it.

Mix one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder with one spoonful of water in a tin cup; boil thoroughly for a few moments, stir to prevent burning, and if ammonia is present you can smell it in the rising steam. As baking powder, when first thrown into the water, will effervesce, do not mistake bubbling for boiling.

The leavening power of Cleveland's Baking Powder comes from cream of tartar and soda only, not ammonia or alum. That is why Cleveland's is wholesome, leavens most and leavens best. Try a can—Cleveland's.

HOW IS BUSINESS

Very dull so say two thirds of the Toledo merchants. Not so with us since we have announced the arrival of our new assortment of suiting, overcoating and trousering for this fall and winter—we are enjoying a good trade, and we are not at all surprised—considering that we cut and make to your measure a nice suit of cloths from all wool goods for $12.90, better grades at $15, $18 and $20. Our overcoatings are very pretty. Brown and black cheviots at $10, to order. Our Milton's Kersey's, Beaver chinchilla, overcoating at $15, $18 and $20, to order, are exactly half what other tailors ask. It would also do your heart and purse good to see our trousering, a nice pair of all wool trousers to order for $3, better grades at $4, $5 and $6, if you wish?

THE THEATER.

The Duff Company in "The Queen's Mate."

Julia Marlowe Opens Her Engagement Here Monday—Miss Gale in "As You Like It."—Ullie Akerstrom—General Theatrical Notes.

The Duff Opera company fully sustained their well-earned reputation at the Wheeler opera house last evening, where they sang the "Queen's Mate." It was a performance the equal of which comes to Toledo but seldom. The company is one of the strongest ever managed by Duff, from the stars to the chorus. The "Queen's Mate" has been sung here before but the performance of last evening eclipsed any of the previous productions of this pleasing light opera. Misses Helen Bertram and Bettina Gerard are the possessors of splendid voices, sweet and rich, and their stage presence is also very effective. W. H. Clark ably seconded them with his full, powerful bass. The members of the company as a whole and as individuals have good voices and the chorus is particularly strong. The costuming and setting of the piece was in keeping with the company.

The "Queen's Mate" is being repeated this afternoon, and "Paola" will be produced this evening.

Julia Marlowe.

Julia Marlowe, who appears at Wheeler's Monday and Tuesday, in "Cymbeline" and "Ingomar" has been receiving very flattering notices from the press this season. The Philadelphia Public Ledger has the following to say of her first night in that city:

"An enjoyable performance of "Cymbeline," at the Broad Street theater last evening, reintroduced Julia Marlowe to her many Philadelphia admirers, and proved to them that she had fulfilled the promise of her first appearance at this theater, when she won the plaudits of the severest critics. She could not add to the grace of her presence, the charming naturalness of her manner, her intense womanliness, the music of her voice or the intelligence which she displayed in the reading of her lines, but she could acquire stage experience and physical strength, and this she has done. Imogen is, by many, accounted the finest of Shakespeare's women, and Miss Marlowe fully realizes the character. She does this, in part, in her own person, much as she is Parthenia by nature; but Imogen requires a higher range of acting, and Miss Marlowe proved herself fully equal to the most exacting situations. She makes Imogen a most sympathetic, loving woman, and portrays her sufferings, alike from hunger and from the discovery of her husband's cruel intentions, with remarkable pathetic power. The cave scene alone would stamp her as an actress of the first rank, her mobile features expressing as clearly as her well-attuned voice the emotions that overpowered her. The poetic beauties of the play in spite of the grossness of main incident of the plot) were developed by a company of unusual strength in the minor roles. It is not often that Shakespeare's lines are so well read by nearly all the characters. The Cloten of Mr. Giles Shine was made offensive by its loudness, but the braggart lines of the part justified the representation the actor gave of the character. H. A. Weaver, sr., was admirable as Belarius, and Dodson L. Mitchell and Walter Thomas were fit companions as Guiderius and Arviragus. Mr. Robert Taber as Posthumus looked out of place with his companions, but was earnest and passionate, and Charles B. Hanford made an excellent Iachimo. Mrs. M. A. Pennoyer, as the Queen, and Miss Marie Knowles, as Helen, are also to be specially commended, though the entire company is entitled to share in the success achieved. The play was finely mounted, a wood scene being notably good."

Ullie Akerstrom.

This young lady, who is increasing in popularity each year, is surrounded with an excellent company this season, and will appear at the People's theater all of next week in a repertoire of new plays. Monday and Tuesday, A Little Busybody; Wednesday and Thursday, Renah, the Gypsy's Daughter; Friday and Saturday, Annette, the Dancing Girl. In these pieces much special scenery is used, and numerous realistic spectacular effects are introduced.

The Boston Daily Globe speaks as follows of Miss Akerstrom:

"Bright Ullie Akerstrom made new friends at the Boston theater last evening. Renah, the Gypsy's Daughter, was the play. It is the work of this earnest and zealous young actress, and it is excellently adapted as a vehicle for the young lady's undoubted talent. To see Miss Akerstrom utilize opportunities for "prinking up" in the second act, when the ragged little maid tries to make herself presentable to the artist who has befriended Renah, is to enjoy a delightful piece of comedy characterization. The Swedish star gives a pleasant and interesting portrayal of the young girl, made a drudge by a cruel miller who hopes to get a fortune which she will inherit when she comes of age, but who, through the friendly aid of a village "natural" and her artist lover, finally comes to the enjoyment of the wealth that is hers by right. Miss Akerstrom's dances as in Annette were extremely graceful.

Ullie Ackerstrom.

Miss Gale.

Miss Gale's coming engagement at Wheeler's next Wednesday is attracting much more than the usual attention and her appearance will be carefully and most critically watched. Speculation is rife as to the result of her starring tour. Among professionals and managers generally a verdict has already been pronounced in her favor. Certainly the young actress has shown the public that she is capable of great work. As the leading lady in the Booth and Barrett combination she proved an actress of much power, being powerful and rising at times to a height that evoked in New York perfect thunders of applause.

She is said by one critic to remind one more of Charlotte Cushman, and she certainly possesses much of Miss Cushman's intensity and magnetism, and she has a pleasing personality that was lacking in the great tragedienne. Miss Gale's repertoire is one calculated to bring out the best patrons of the legitimate school.

The supporting company lends additional interest from the fact that at its head is Mr. Creston Clarke, an actor of the most brilliant attainments and widely and favorably known. There are also several members of the late Booth-Barrett company with Miss Gale, and the numerous plays presented under the capable management of Mr. Theodore Bromley and stage direction of Mr. Robert M. Eberle are facts worth considering. Miss Gale will be seen here as Rosalind in "As You Like It." The sale of seats opens Monday at Holmes' drug store.

Notes of the Play.

Sardou is writing a new Russian play to be called Raissia.

The sale of seats for Miss Gale's engagement will open Monday.

Maggie Mitchell is out in a new play this season called Little Miss Maverick.

Booth paid Modjeska $1,000 a week, De Wolf Hopper received $650 from the Casino and Mrs. John Drew $500 weekly from Jefferson. Aronson paid Pauline Hall $400 and Ada Rehan's weekly income from Mr. Daly is $300.

STORY OF A CHILD.

Of Greatest Interest to All Parents.

Infants and children are peculiarly liable to nervous disorders; they become nervous, restless, fretful, cross, irritable; they toss restlessly from side to side, grit their teeth or murmur in sleep, grow thin, pale, slight and puny.

If your infants or children are sick, give them that greatest of all children's remedies, DR. GREENE'S NERVURA. This marvelous remedy is the great family medicine, and calms and soothes the nerves, strengthens and invigorates the body, restoring healthful color to the cheek, refreshing sleep, strong nerves, stout limbs and that bounding health which all children should have. Being purely vegetable and harmless, it is perfectly safe to give to infants or children of any age, and its curative effects are wonderful.

Do not neglect the health of your children, parents. Use DR. GREENE'S NERVURA in all nervous diseases of infants and children, and see them improve in health and strength every day and every hour. Druggists sell it, $1.00.

RESULT OF NEGLECTED NERVOUSNESS.

"My little girl has been taking medicines for a severe nervous trouble nearly two years, receiving no benefit. I then bought a bottle of DR. GREENE'S NERVURA, and her recovery by its use has been remarkable. Others of the family have received benefit from its use.

C. H. BEMIS,
Granby, Mass."

N. B.—Dr. Greene, the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th Street, New York, can be consulted free, personally, or by letter. Call or write him about your case, or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

POISONOUS HAT BANDS.

Dr. J. F. Geisler, of New York, some time ago bought a hat which caused him more than the average amount of discomfort. After a time the hat was accidentally exposed to an atmosphere containing sulphuretted hydrogen, and a discoloration of the sweat band was noticed, which on examination was found to be due to the formation of sulphide of lead. The discoloration was darker in places where the perspiration had accumulated and dried.

Careful analysis of the sweat band showed it to contain no less than 0.8585 grain of lead per square inch, or 37.584 grains for the whole band. The color found used was apparently white lead, of which the quantity of lead named indicates 1.068 grains per square inch, or 46.992 grains for the entire band.

Dr. Geisler gives the discomforting assurance that white lead and litharge are frequently used in connection with boiled oil to give leather a glossy finish. Some sweat bands contain more of the lead compound than others, and also in different conditions, rendering some more injurious than others.

A CONSISTENT MAN.

Mr. Weatherly was sitting in his office when a young man came in and presented a bill for $10.

"Look here, young fellow, it seems that you people are in considerable of a hurry for money."

"I don't think so, sir. You have owed it for a year."

"Yes, for a year; but let me tell you that I am 51 years old. So you see there were 50 years of my life during which I didn't owe it. Just think of it—didn't owe you a cent for 50 years. Now, I don't see what better record you want than that. Let time even this thing a little; let us be consistent."—Arkansaw Traveler.

TORTURING ECZEMA.

Editor Iowa Plain Dealer Cured of Insufferable Itching and Pain by the Cuticura Remedies.

No Less Than Five Physicians Consulted. Their Combined Wisdom Followed Without Benefit.

I am sixty-six years old. In August, 1889 was troubled with the peculiar skin disease to which people of my age are subject, known among medical men as eczema. Its first appearance was near the ankles. It rapidly extended over the lower extremities until my legs were nearly one raw sore; from legs the trouble extended across the hips, shoulders and the entire length of the arms, the legs and arms greatly swollen with an itching burning pain, without cessation. Although the best medical advice attainable was employed, no less than five physicians of the place being consulted and the prescriptions being the result of their combined wisdom, the disease though apparently checked, would recur in a few days as bad as ever; during its progress my weight fell away about 25 pounds. As an experiment I began the use of CUTICURA, followed by CUTICURA SOAP, and in fourteen days from the time the CUTICURA REMEDIES were commenced, I was entirely relieved. W. H. MEAD.
Editor Iowa Plain Dealer, Cresco, Ia.

LANSDOWNE AT WORK.

Calcutta, Oct. 24.—Lord Lansdowne entered the capital of Cashmere yesterday and was received with great enthusiasm. The viceroy is giving personal attention to the reported Russian inroads on the Pamir.

If you are tired of taking the large, old ashioned griping pills, try Carter's Little Liver Pills and take some comfort. A man can't stand everything. One pill a dose. Try them.

AN IMPROVED TROLLEY ROD.

A new form of trolley rod shown at the Frankfort exhibition possesses many advantages over the rod at present used. It consists of an ordinary coiled conical spring, one end of which is fixed to the roof of the car, while the other end contains a socket for the trolley rod. This form is cheap and simple, and enables the rod to bend up and down and to the right or left without breaking the contact, and at the same time needed no adjustments.

OUR LIVE STOCK.

A census bulletin contains the information that in the census month of last year there were on hand on the farms of the United States 14,976,017 horses, 2,246,936 mules and 49,109 asses. These figures do not include the animals on ranges nor those kept on holdings of less than three acres, so that the city ownership is not enumerated. The increase of horses in the decade was 44.50 per cent, against 44.95 per cent for the ten years ending in 1890. The increase of mules was much smaller, and they are most numerously held in the South Atlantic group of states, the per centage there being 32.04 of mules and 67.96 of horses.

The wife of an English paper maker one day dropped a blue-bag into one of the vats of pulp. When the workmen saw the colored paper they were astonished, and their employer was so angry at the mischance that his wife did not dare confess her agency in bringing it about. The paper was stored for years as a damaged lot, and finally the manufacturer sent it to his agent in London, telling him to sell it at any price. Fashion at once marked it for her own. It was rapidly sold at an advanced rate, and the manufacturer found it difficult to supply at once the great demand for colored paper.

Garfield Tea is the tired housewife's best friend, freeing the body from aches and pains, creating a buoyancy of spirits and lovely complexion.

When Edwin Arnold appears in full dress his coat glistens with the orders conferred on him by kings and potentates, which would incarcerate to a certain kind of intelligence that "literary fellers" are looking up.
